

Local Reaction: Wait, See, Hope

By SHANE CROSBY
Reactions on the streets of Kingston to yesterday's halting of the bombing in North Vietnam showed sparks of hope, but few overly optimistic feelings were expressed in Freeman interviews Friday afternoon.

Two questions were asked. The first was "What was your reaction to President Johnson's halt of the bombing in North Vietnam?" and the other was "do you think it was politically motivated?"

Most thought the suspension was a good sign that the Paris talks were progressing, but one man was shocked when informed of the halt.

The man, who would not identify himself, stood in front of the Kingston Shopping Plaza Barber shop, and said he thought the bombing had started up again after Johnson had announced the halt.

When assured that the bombing halt had gone into effect, he said "I'm shocked." I guess it was just a rumor." He was asked what he thought of the stoppage and said "it's good."

He did not feel it had anything to do with the election next week.

Harold Grant of Port Ewen commented that "yes, it was a good sign," but did not think it would be kept up. "They'll start up again in a week or so," he said.

A woman shopper in a Plaza department store thought for a moment then went into a defense of President Johnson's action. "He's a good man. I wish he were on the ballot. I would vote for him." She did not see any connection between the president's decision and the election next week, saying Johnson had been working to stop the war for a long time.

"He's not going to give them something for nothing," she said. Her feeling was that Johnson should have waited for some positive move from the other side. The shopper also felt that the halt was not going to end the war.

Others took the President's move as a political one that was designed to help Hubert Humphrey in the election. "It's too close to the election," said a Woodstock housewife at the Plaza. "He has had all this time to act in the past," she commented. But she still held open the idea that it could mean an end "sometime."

A companion agreed with her saying "he just wants to get Humphrey elected."

"Thank God," said a Hurley man as he stepped out from lunch. "That's what I thought." He felt that the President did not act just to help Humphrey but thought the halt would be good for the Democratic party as a whole. "The men on the Pueblo are still over there," he reminded the interviewer, "the American ship and its crew in North Korean hands."

The diner added "I don't see any end..." but "it's a good thing."

Something Hopeful
Most of those interviewed were of the opinion that anything positive coming out of the talks in Paris was something to be hopeful for. None seemed to prefer the continuation of bombing raids in the war, or at least none showed signs of hostility to the stopping of the bombing aside from political motivations in the action of the President.

Reaction was mainly of optimism. They felt the halt was a step in the right direction to end the war. Only one person out of the dozen questioned refused to give a comment.

Their comments, or lack of comment, added to the reaction of Congressional candidates John Dyson and Hamilton Fish Jr., showed an overwhelming feeling that although the bombing halt was not the end, to the war, it was a step in the right direction—towards a stoppage of fighting on both sides and possibly an end to the war that has plagued the Johnson Administration.

In comments yesterday morning after the halt went into effect, Democratic candidate Dyson called for "followup action so that this move towards peace is not lost in political rhetoric." He was seconded by the G.O.P. choice, Fish, who said "I regret that the earlier, All Americans want the bombing halt to be far down the road." The man on the street in Kingston seems to be going along with this thought without hearing it. Wait, see and hope seem to be the feelings.

LAST MISSION?—Cmdr. Kenneth E. Enney, 42, of San Diego, Calif., walks to his plane aboard the USS Constellation prior to leading a naval air strike against targets in North Vietnam. It may prove to have been Enney's last mission over North Vietnam. The U.S. declared a halt in all bombing of North Vietnam, effective at 8 a. m. Friday. (UPI RADIOPHOTO)

Thieu's Decision: No Delegation

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States evidently intends to make a major effort in the new phase of the Paris peace talks to get an agreement with Hanoi on withdrawal of all foreign forces from South Vietnam.

Such action "is utterly simple and it is a very quick road to peace," Secretary of State Dean Rusk said at a Friday news conference.

A monkey wrench was tossed in the works, however, when South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that he would not send representatives to next week's Paris talks because his government objects to the conditions under which the session, scheduled to start Wednesday, is to be held.

When President Johnson announced Thursday night that U.S. attacks on North Vietnam were being halted, he also said that representatives of both the Saigon government and the Hanoi-backed National Liberation Front, which is the political arm of the Viet Cong, would be represented. Thieu said the only real road to peace is through direct negotiations between Saigon and Hanoi, and not with the NLF.

The Texas White House and the State Department declined comment on Thieu's statement. Other officials were taking a wait-and-see attitude, feeling that Saigon eventually will send people to Paris.

On the troop issue, Rusk said that 75 per cent of the enemy forces in South Vietnam are from the North.

"These armed forces of North Vietnam that have been thrown into South Vietnam and Laos must get out of these countries if there is to be peace," he said. "They ought to leave the people in Cambodia alone. They ought to stop sending guerrillas into Thailand."

"This is so simple and clear that one is astonished sometimes to find that it is not generally taken for granted, because that is a basis on which there could be peace in Southeast Asia."

He said he expected that the forthcoming negotiations, however, would not take up the broad issue of peace in South-east Asia as one package but would tackle the problem "one bit at a time."

Specifically, he declared that "we are going to talk to Hanoi about that problem" of its troops in South Vietnam.

Asked whether he thought a compromise settlement for South Vietnam would be possible, he said "one compromise would be for them to take their troops home" and for the U.S. and its allies to withdraw their troops as they have already declared they would do if the North Vietnamese would withdraw.

Thieu's objections were not a complete surprise.

Saigon's position has always been that it is the government of the whole of South Vietnam and the NLF has no status. The Front, however, is said by North Vietnam to be the true representative of the South Vietnamese people.

Rusk argued that the questions of status and recognition should be put aside. He said the United States does not recognize either North Vietnam or the Front but is prepared to talk to them at the meetings and listen to what they say.

Rusk also declared Friday that now that the United States has stopped attacks on North Vietnam, the next move "is up to Hanoi."

Continue Probe Of Legion Fire

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Kingston City police and firemen are conducting an investigation into a fire at the American Legion Home on West O'Reilly Street shortly after midnight last night.

Fire gutted the brick building early this morning and authorities have reason to believe it was of an incendiary nature.

According to witnesses on the scene, the side door of the building was forcefully entered and the cash register rifled. It is believed the person or persons entered the building shortly after the night bartender left at 11:30 p. m. last night.

The fire was believed to have started in the basement among some rags near the boiler. Said one Legionnaire, "It must have taken some kind of warped mind to set fire to the building. There was no reason for it."

Damage to the building was extensive from fire, smoke and water. Several inches of water covered the basement floor and a number of windows were broken by the fire fighters.

Everett Emmick, commander of Post 150, said the fire was still under investigation but added, "I guess we're out of business for awhile. That's all I can tell you."

Due to the extensive damage to the building police and fire officials expect difficulty in piecing together exactly what happened last night.

Rusk said various governments and "leading personalities"—an apparent reference to the Soviet Union and to U.N. Secretary General U Thant, among others—have told the United States that there would be good results if the bombing raids were ended.

"It is now incumbent upon all of those who have taken that view to make an maximum to ensure that their advice has substance in it," he said.

Lower Taxation in '69 County Budget

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Ulster County's preliminary budget for 1969 set at $16,774,301.29 will reflect in a decrease of $37,724.98 in the amount to be raised by real estate taxation.

Despite an increase of $422,454.12 in appropriations over last year's budget figure of $16,351,847.17 which provides additional services and mandatory salary increases and fringe benefits for the county's employees, total estimated revenues will leave less to raise by taxation.

County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz, Gardner said there are several factors in the new budget which will permit a decrease in the county tax rate.

In addition to a decrease in the amount to be raised by taxes of $37,724.98, as announced today by Budget Officer Edward W. Snyder, there are these factors which will reflect in a lower tax rate:

There is an increase of $1,354,000 in the county's total assessed valuation which excludes the revaluation of properties in the Town of Plattekill. More than $150,000 in new taxes is expected to be raised from the increase in assessed valuation. The current year's total assessed valuation of property in Ulster County is $100,123,532. The total assessed valuation for 1969 will be $111,959,264 which includes the revaluation of all property in the Town of Plattekill. The equalization rate for the township was 6 per cent last year. For this year it will be 60 per cent due to revaluation.

The fund balances from the various departments show a large increase and will total more than $350,000 to be listed under anticipated revenues.

The decrease in appropriation was made possible due to cuts in various departments by the Legislature's Budget Committee totaling $415,849.72. The total from requests of departments would have brought the county budget up to $19,115,041.01. By comparing items deemed unnecessary and other economies, the Budget Committee was able to cut this figure down to $18,699,191.29. With inter-fund revenues deducted from this figure the total appropriations was brought down to $16,774,301.29.

Estimated revenues excluding inter-fund revenues totals $8,776,829.93. This added to the fund balances in various departments brought the estimated revenue figure to $9,126,829.93.

The budget hearing date will be set at a special meeting of the County Legislature, Thursday, Nov. 7, following an executive meeting with department heads scheduled to review the entire budget.

County departments with the greatest amount of changes are listed as follows:

Social Services Department decreased its amount to be raised by taxation by $198,068.61. The current year's figure to be raised by taxation totaled $2,464,197.77 as compared with the 1969 figure of $2,266,129.16.

The County Highway Department shows an increase to be raised of $25,032.

The County General Fund for the operation of county government indicates an increase of $112,192.36 over last year's figure of $2,472,231.64. The increase includes provisions for capital projects, one of which is the Perrine's Bridge restoration, $25,000. Other increases are state retirement up $34,621; Social Security up $50,000; hospitalization insurance up $10,000; veteran's burials up $1,000, and reserve for uncollected taxes up $51,000.

Debt service shows a decrease of $14,910. This is the payment of interest, bonds and notes. The note covering the renovation of the county court house has been paid off and this reflects in the decrease.

Appropriations for the Community College showed an increase of $265,267.32 which reflected the cost for the start of Phase II of the college at the Stone Ridge site. The new appropriations totaled $598,345.16 compared with $333,077.84 in the current budget.

A limited number of copies of the preliminary budget are now available at the office of the clerk of the County Legislature at the County Office Building, Fair and Main Streets.

Red Hook Woman, 2 Others Die In Area Automobile Mishaps

Three persons, including a Red Hook woman, are dead and five others are in area hospitals following two accidents last night, one in Greene County, the other in Dutchess.

Four of the five, from the New York City area, are listed in fair condition, and one Prattsville man is listed in "poor" condition.

Dead are Reta Peiz, 26, of Red Hook; Mrs. Elise Geisman, 89, of New York City, and Severne Knibestol, 29, of Staten Island.

The Red Hook woman died when she was thrown from her car after it collided with another vehicle on Route 308 in the Dutchess County town of Rhinebeck. Knibestol was a passenger in the second car, as were three of the injured, including the driver.

Troopers from Rhinebeck said the Peiz woman was traveling east on Route 308 at about 10:15 p. m. when her 1962 sports car collided with the other vehicle, a 1968 sedan.

They reported that the woman apparently lost control of the car as it ran off the right side of the highway. She attempted to regain control, they said, but the car veered to the left and crossed the middle of the road, collided with the sedan. All the occupants in the sedan were taken to Northern Dutchess Hospital along with the Red Hook woman. She and Knibestol were reported dead upon arrival.

Two of the injured were later taken to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Injured were Guy Molinari of Staten Island, now in Vassar; Anthony Bachille, also from Staten Island, now in Northern Dutchess Hospital, and Northern Ditommaso, age 37, of Staten Island, now in Vassar.

The 89-year-old New York City woman died when the car she was in with her husband, Paul Geisman, 76, collided with a vehicle on Route 42 at the Route 6 intersection in the Greene County town of Lexington.

Troopers from Leeds said she was dead upon arrival at Greene County Memorial Hospital. Her husband is listed in fair condition and the driver of the other vehicle, Nicholas Palermo, 40, of Prattsville, is listed in "poor" condition.

The Palermo car was heading north on Route 42, according to Troopers, at about 6 p. m. Friday, when it reportedly crossed the dividing line and collided with the car driven by Geisman.

Troopers said that criminal action is pending against the Prattsville man.

Geisman was said to have suffered cuts of the face, a possible broken knee and wrist and a number of shattered ribs. Palermo, they reported, received numerous broken ribs and internal injuries as well and cuts and bruises.

Greene County Coroner Frederick Decker was on the scene at the Lexington accident along with Troopers J.W. Miller, and BCI investigators J. J. Buckley and Joseph Valicenti.

Lutheran Ministers Hold Reunion Fete

The Rev. Walter E. Bock, DD, recently returned representative of the Lutheran World Federation in Berlin, was the guest speaker at the Reformation reunion and luncheon held by Lutheran pastors of the Hudson District of the Metropolitan New York Synod of the Lutheran Church in America at Trinity Lutheran Church, this week.

Speaking on Berlin — Its Implications for the Church and the World, Dr. Bock briefed the assembled pastors on church life in the East and West zones of the divided city and on the work of the federation. Dr. Bock is presently the director of Church-College Relations at Wagner College, Staten Island. The reunion provided pastors the opportunity to renew old acquaintances, former fellowship, and to meet new pastors of the district. Like Berlin (but not for the same reasons), the Hudson District was divided several years ago when two synods were established in New York State by the Lutheran Church in America.

Some former pastors of the district came from Albany, Troy, Rome and Meriden, Conn., to be on hand for the occasion. The Rev. Herman Vesper (retired) of Poughkeepsie, was the senior pastor present, having been ordained in 1919. The present Hudson District comprises congregations in Ulster, Dutchess, Orange and Sullivan counties.

U.S. Demands Cease Fire In Mid East

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Fire touched off by an Israeli attack raged in a Soviet built power station on the Nile River Friday night as the U.N. Security Council heard a U.S. demand for strict observance of the Middle East cease-fire.

The council met in emergency session on complaints by Egypt and Israel, who blamed each other for two military intrusions last week.

The Israeli army announced that Israeli commandos had penetrated 125 miles across the Suez Canal into Egypt to bomb two Nile bridges and a power station. Egypt claimed an Israeli bomber did the damage.

The attack came five days after 15 Israeli troops were killed and 34 wounded in an artillery duel across the canal which U.N. observers said was started by Egypt.

U.S. Ambassador J. R. Wiggins insisted before the council that both Israel and Egypt must "faithfully observe the cease-fire" to avoid upsetting the peace mission of U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Rarring.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Teikosh said an Israeli commando unit blew up two Nile bridges and a power station to remind Egypt "that the aggressor is not beyond reach." He said Israel acted because Egypt had initiated the exchange of fire along the Suez Canal Saturday in which the Israeli soldiers were killed and wounded.

Wiggins criticized both Egypt's argument that it has a right to practice "preventive defense" and Israel's contention that it is entitled to "reprisal."

He said, "Neither is acceptable."

It was Wiggins' first speech before the council since he became the U.S. ambassador Oct. 7.

The council session adjourned until Monday after Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik said it was up to the council to "decisively condemn Israel" and demand it cease "aggressive acts."

At Nag Hammadi, 144 miles north of Egypt's prized multi-million dollar Aswan Dam now nearing completion, Associated Press correspondent Aly Mahmoud reported that the $15 million power station which bore the brunt of the Israeli raid was still burning 24 hours after the attack. He said eight of its nine huge transformers were damaged, one seriously.

No dollar estimate of the damage was available. Newsman on the scene were told the raid also damaged bridges and an irrigation dyke.

State Law on Ownership of Property For Voting Ruled Unconstitutional

NEW YORK (AP) — A three-judge federal court has ruled unconstitutional a provision in New York State law that requires persons to be property owners in order to vote on village propositions.

The court granted a temporary injunction Friday to seven residents of the Village of Ossining who had complained that Section 4-402 (B) of the Village Law of New York State, they would be barred from voting in an election scheduled for next Tuesday because they did not own real estate.

The election is on a local proposition to replace the mayor of Ossining with a city manager. All seven plaintiffs are registered voters but live in rented apartments, cooperative apartments or rented homes.

The three judges—Court of Appeals Judge Wilfred Feinberg and Dist. Judges John F.X. McGohery and Inzer B. Wyatt—said that Section 4-402 (b) would disqualify about 55 per cent of the 9,840 persons who are registered to vote in the election.

Such exclusion would be "an invidious discrimination," the judges said.

"In one election district which contains 16 per cent of the electorate," they pointed out, "apparently very few, if any, of the voters would be qualified to vote on the proposition."

Therefore, they said, "We enjoin the operation of Section 4-402 (b) so that all who wish to vote on the proposition in the presently scheduled election may do so."

The court said it would not forbid the use of different colored ballots for those who own property and those who do not. Village officials had said that if colored ballots were used, it would be easier to separate them in case of a court review.

"We leave it to the defendants to decide whether to provide for separation of ballots in an appropriate way or to seek whatever other relief they may wish," the judges said.

"We do no more than enjoin the operation of an unconstitutional statute in the Village election."

Mayor John G. Donzella and the village trustees were named as defendants in the case. The Ossining Chamber of Commerce supported the plaintiffs.

The Village of Ossining, in Westchester County, has a population of 22,300.

Dump Dubcek Drive Later This Month

PRAGUE (UPI)—A Czechoslovak Communist Party Central Committee meeting scheduled for "The middle of November" will become a forum for a drive to discredit and depose reformist leader Alexander Dubcek and his followers, party sources predicted today.

The 21-member party presidium announced late Friday the 100-member Central Committee would meet to deal with new programs. The programs were drafted by the Presidium and will replace the ambitious democratic action program approved last spring.

At that time the Czechoslovak Communist reform movement was in full flower. It was braked by the Soviet bloc invasion Aug. 20-21.

A number of different factions have publicly criticized Dubcek's reform regime and all will have reason to move against him during the session later this month.

The largest single group includes old Stalinists left over from the regime of Antonin Novotny, ousted by Dubcek and his followers early this year. Others who can be expected to criticize Dubcek are those who believe he moved with undue haste in bringing reform to the country and those who feel he surrendered too much to the Soviets following the invasion.

Today the reform leadership received its first grassroots vote of support in a campaign to destroy the growing power of old line Stalinists in local party organizations. The Bratislava district party committee adopted a resolution sharply criticizing a pro-Moscow conservative group calling itself the "Fraternal Comrades." The group is working for Dubcek's ouster.

A new anti-Dubcek newspaper called "Kladenska Svoboda" has appeared in the factory town of Kladno near Prague. It has described Dubcek as incompetent.

Party sources said the campaign to force district committees to attack the conservatives is needed now because it could make the difference whether Dubcek receives a vote of confidence at the impending Central Committee meeting.

Chase Bank Finances New School in Zena

Chase Manhattan Bank received the certificate of award for the issuing of serial bonds for the Zena Elementary School.

The huge New York City financial institution bid a rate of interest of 3.90 per cent on the $1,450,000 note.

The Kingston City School District Board of Education made the announcement today.

The interest on the note made the total amount bid $1,453,113.

According to Ira M. Shaw, associate superintendent of business management at the sprawling school district, said, "Considering the present financial market, our school district is proud to note that due to its financial management and its ability to achieve a double A rating, we were able to receive this low rate of interest."

The bids were opened in New York City recently.

Streifer Addresses Kiwanis; Talks About Supreme Court

Political labels lose significance in the judiciary," said Abraham Streifer, local lawyer seeking election to the State Supreme Court, in an address before the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday.

The idea of elections was further emphasized at the meeting as the local service club elected its officers for the coming year—bringing John McCullough to the presidency of the club. Other officers elected included Harry Hines and Harlow DeForest, vice-presidents, Donald MacIsaac past president, Fred Van Deusen secretary-treasurer, and George Vogel and Tony Pizzarelli, directors for three years. Howard R. St. John, chairman of the nominating committee, reported that "all officers were elected without a contest."

Attorney Streifer suggested that many citizens were not too well acquainted with the jurisdiction of the State Supreme Court. He termed it "the highest court of original jurisdiction," and further described it as "the court where the lives of citizens" of the State justice needs a resident judge." In conclusion, Attorney Streifer emphasized that the selection of a judge for the Supreme Court "should be above politics," that it should be "a civic effort to secure a resident judge."

GO OVER PRESENTATION — Marie Abernathy, James Rundle Jr., and Mary Fede go over bills to be presented for assembly consideration today. Six bills of varied subject matter have been thought out for the formal presentation and debate. Committees have been working since September on arguments and facts with qualified advisors.

Area Youths Do Part In Legislative Meet

As adults prepare to go to the polls on election Day, the proposed bills come before the district assembly.

Area youths have been working on six bills since early this fall to be presented at today's pre-legislative session.

The District Hi-Y Local Youth and Government Assembly convened this morning at the Kingston City Court Room in another step toward the New York State YMCA Youth and Government legislative sessions in Albany.

The program is designed to add to youth's knowledge of government organization and structure through participation in some of its processes and to expand interest in some of the current problems of the state and nation.

On to Albany

The area assemblies throughout the state draft and debate bills on current issues for presentation at the Albany Assembly. Adhering strictly to the proposed bills come before the district assembly.

Area youths have been working on six bills since early this fall to be presented at today's pre-legislative session.

Titles of bills under consideration are as follows:

Outlaw cigarette smoking; retest of all drivers every six years complete with eye and road tests; state aid to families with children having birth defects such as cerebral palsy; distribution of birth control devices to anyone regardless of age; abolishing all TV commercials connecting smoking with sports and an air pollution control.

Awareness of modern problems is plainly evidenced through the bills which were prepared by each of the participating clubs in the Mid-Hudson area.

Local Officer

At the first district meeting officers were elected and details of procedure were reviewed.

Leon Van Heusen of the Kingston YMCA is serving as area advisor. In briefing the group he made it clear that presentation, debate, arguments, oratory, facts and credentials "must be top-notch."

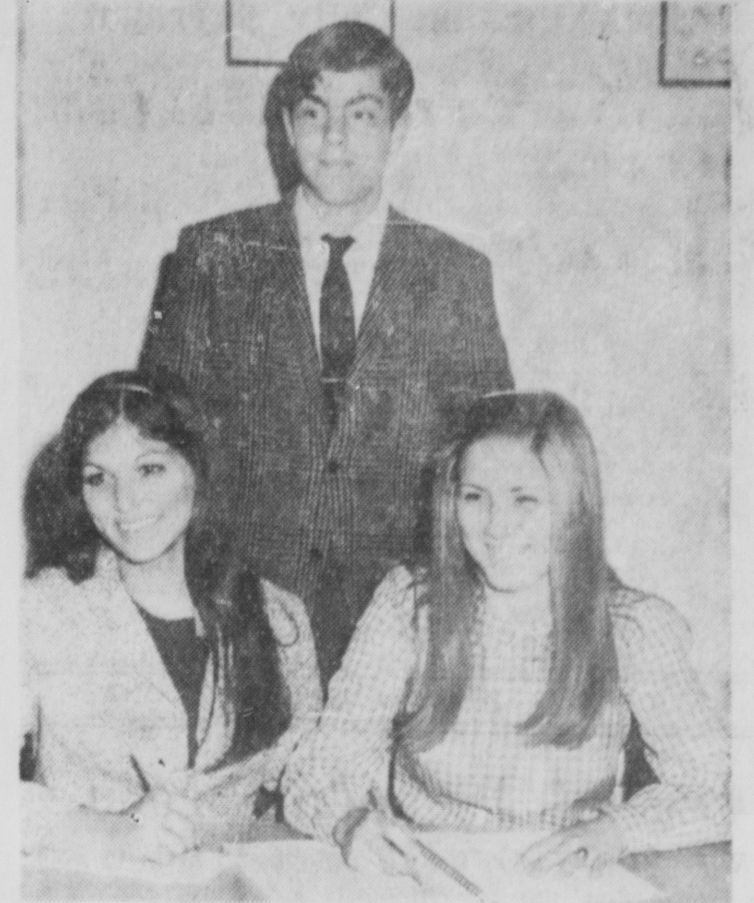

Pam Benitez of Kingston was elected secretary of the Mid-Hudson Council and assembly clerk. Patricia Scarvalone was named president and Robert Bower assembly speaker.

Washington conference for American Leaders Tomorrow meet. Delegates from 38 states are on hand for the national session.

Next Steps

Mid-Hudson area representatives selected today will go to Albany Nov. 15 through 17 for bills committee meeting. Three candidates will be selected for a pool from which the selection will be made of bill clerks, chaplains and sergeants-at-arms at the Assembly in Albany Dec. 13 through 15.

In addition to learning legislative processes and heightening awareness of civic problems, the long standing YMCA program serves as a training ground in skills of parliamentary procedure and articulate debate.

Talented Teens Get Extra Art Workshop

The talented teens are slated for a series of fascinating fall and winter workshops under the Mid-Hudson Region TAP.

The Talented Art Program is a unique project of out-of-school supplementary education for artistically talented students and operates throughout the region with the aid of federal funds provided under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services is the sponsor of the innovative project, now in its third year of operation.

Craftsmen and artists conducting the workshops which will continue through Jan. 25 are Ronald Burke, ceramics and metal work, Rock Tavern; Mrs. Jean Carlson, sculpture, Cornwall; John DeBroske, graphics in Garrison; Eugene Fairbanks, mixed media, Poughkeepsie; Miss Berta Frey, weaving, Bearsville; Mrs. Thyra Wexler, sculpture, New Paltz; and M. Frank Wright, film making, Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Ann Bryan of New Paltz who is teaching painting and mixed media and Steve Robin of Woodstock who is teaching furniture design are new instructors in the TAP project.

Kingston area participants in the furniture design sessions are Robert Johnson, Margaret Mahoney and Scott Swan, all of Kingston High School; Wayne Simmons of Myron J. Michael Junior High and Peter Anderson of Woodstock, an Ontario Central School student.

Future film makers of Ulster County include Chris Culver and Mark Sickler of John A. Coleman Catholic High School, Kingston; Barbara Schneller of Kingston High School; Jeff Ackery, Michael and Robert Browne, all of New Paltz High School.

Coleman and New Paltz students make up the painting class studying with Mrs. Bryan. They are Diane Lee and Ann McDowell, both of New Paltz but students at Coleman; Kris Crawford and Alex Yang of Campus School; Gregory Decker, Kathy Dzwonek, Charles Interrante, of Paltz

High School; Lily Fulton of Central and Karen Karsten of Middle School.

Taking part in Miss Frey's weaving classes are Diane Barrett and Christine Keator of Kingston High School; Michele Breakell of Shokan, Susanne Goddard of Woodstock, both of Ontario High; Camille and Dominique Beech of Woodstock School; Maureen Mower of West Hurley School; Nancy Breakell of Shodan, Bennett School; Elizabeth Florsch of Saugerties Main Street School and Molly Reid of New Paltz High School.

New Paltz Campus School students make up the majority of the Wexler sculpture class. They include Michelle Bouchard, Kate Connors, Janet Fishburne, Nadra Haffar, Joan Kessler and James Matzdorf. Others selected for this study are Charles Gardner and William Gittings of New Paltz Middle School and a Newburgh student Lisa Sperber.

A Modena girl, Ann Marie Squella, a student at Platekill School is the only Ulster resident in the Cornwall sculpture classes with Mrs. Carlson.

Sunday Is Day of Honor For CYO Award Winners

Honors are due Ulster County members of Catholic Youth Organizations tomorrow at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York City.

At an award ceremony climaxing National CYO Week, more than 500 youngsters, teenagers, adults and young adults will be feted for their work.

Area recipients represent a number of county parishes with St. Mary of the Snow, Saugerties taking top honors with CYO Participation Award. The parish award is given for participation in CYO programs and goes to St. Mary of the Snow for the third consecutive year.

Recipients of the Cardinal Spellman Youth Award for "outstanding leadership qualities, fine Christian character, faithfulness, to religious duties and active good citizenship," are from Kingston and Saugerties. They are Karen Cherny, Steven Longendyke and Louis Tirano of St. Mary's, this city and Nancy Christianna, Eileen Gilbane and Christine Mahoney of Saugerties.

Christus Rex Awards for the outstanding CYO youngsters go to Ellen Abernathy, Daniel Mills Nov. 22, 23, and 24 at the and William Weishaupt, St. Laurels Country Club in Monticello. Parish Teen Clubs are advised to make reservations for the annual Archdiocesan event as soon as possible. Plans call for leaving Kingston 1:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 22, so that delegates may take advantage of the facilities at the Laurels which include indoor pools, skating rinks and all manner of recreation facilities.

An example of the activities which have brought honors to the Saugerties teenagers is their planned participation in Election Day Tuesday.

Members of the Teenage Federation have volunteered their services as babysitters so that parents of young children may exercise their voting right. They will provide transportation for senior citizens to polling places also.

Anyone in the Saugerties area wishing to take advantage of these services may contact Mrs. Nancy Buser at St. Mary of the Snow School, Cedar Street between 3 and 5:30 p.m. Election Day and the necessary arrangements will be made.

The teenagers emphasized that there will be no charge for the services as they consider this an opportunity to serve their community on Election Day.

Scattering Through S.A.T.

by LEI

Passing through the chain stores, it's impossible to miss the fact that they are anticipating December. Many are as tinsel-strewn as if Papa Claus were due tomorrow.

High school seniors planning on hitting college next year are looking forward to December with feeling not quite akin to tinsel—and some juniors are getting jittery, too. It's getting to be S.A.T. time of year again, the time for taking those all-important College Board Tests.

Unfortunately, the fear that a low score will rule them out of the college of their choice make some students (and their parents) all too ready to be wasted by the numerous companies, schools, instructors, and so on, who promise that if you pay a handsome price for some special instruction, book, test, or course, that you will raise your test score significantly. (Actually, many of the finest, if not the most prestigious, colleges place little or no importance on the results of College Board Tests, preferring to consider the student and his record as a whole.)

Too Late Now

November is a little early for buying Christmas lights, but it's far too late to do much about your College Board scores, give or take a per cent or two. About 12 years too late, in fact. (At some schools, incidentally, the first date for taking the S.A.T. is past, now, with the next coming up in barely a month.)

The best guarantee of a good S.A.T. score is a good school record. The College Board tests are designed to measure your ability to think and use knowledge. This ability cannot be rubbed in by a quick course. Careful brainning over, year after year, of what you get in the classroom, plus a solid interest in out-of-school reading (aside from fan magazines and the funnies) are what raise the old score—and you should have been working on those since the first grade.

Cramming often does more harm than good, even on subject mastery tests. Long and orderly review will help a lot—and should have been started months ago. Special attention to math tables and formulas won't hurt, but vocabulary drills are a waste of time. If your daily speech is impoverished, the tests will show it.

Skill Is Important

Skill in test-taking is essential, but you don't have to waste your time and money gaining practice taking tests—most of you get PLENTY of them in your daily school grind. There are materials available to you at no cost that will tell you all you need to know about the S.A.T. and other College Board Tests—if fact, they'll probably tell you more than you care to know!

This TEEN SCENE has dealt mostly with what not to do before you sit for your S.A.T. Fortunately, there are also quite a few things you can do which may not raise your score—but they'll help it to be as high as possible. We'll get to the suggestions in a future column. And here's the first one. It's not going to raise your score a bit to worry about it, you know. In fact, you probably don't have a thing to worry about.

Czechs' Weapon: Scorn

While Czech leaders try with might and main to give the impression that everything is sweetness and light between them and the Russians, their countrymen leave no doubt how it really is: The Soviet invaders are as popular as a skunk at a lawn party. On the 50th anniversary of their republic, Sunday, thousands of Czechs proudly proclaimed "Russians Go Home."

Alexander Dubcek and the men around him have decided to bend the knee and touch the brow of the Kremlin. Not so their people. They are powerless to engage the invaders in physical combat. They do not have the weapons or the tanks. But they do have the indomitable spirit that has marked the history of the Czech and Slovak people, and they will resist the Russians with something far more potent than the tools of war, and that is scorn.

The Czechoslovakian people join the rest of the world in looking with contempt on a nation that imposes its will on neighbors by invasion with its military might. It can be truthfully said that Russia does not have a friend among the nations of the world, for sure not among its satellites, or anywhere else one cares to look. Thick-skinned as the Kremlin bosses are, this must prey on their minds at times.

Exodus From Slums

A quiet revolution has been under way in the slums of the biggest hundred cities in the country the past three months. Some 100,000 persons, each month have left the slums and ghettos where they had lived, presumably moving into better urban neighborhoods.

Not only did this mean that 300,000 persons have improved their own condition, but they have made room for the remaining 6.4 million to better themselves. With the job training programs available to them, the exodus from the slums should continue at least at the same monthly rate.

At the same time, voices are being heard for the return of middle class whites to the city from which they fled in recent years. Their going robbed the cities of the imaginative leadership and creative spirit that is found in the better educated and more highly motivated class of citizens.

One person who feels strongly about the return of the middle class is State Senator Margaret C. Schweinhaut, candidate for Congress from Maryland's suburban eighth district. She would have Congress offer "whatever inducements may be necessary" to reverse the trend from the city to the suburbs. Tax inducements cannot be the lure simply because they do not satisfy the reasons for moving to the suburbs in the first place.

When the city streets and halls are safe again, when air and water pollution are eliminated, when urban schools measure up to those in many suburbs, perhaps the city dweller will return. There are many cultural and social advantages in the cities he misses. But he will not return simply to help lead the city out of its morass. That is a major reason why he left in the first place.

The Model Community

The state of Pennsylvania is thinking of a fitting way to commemorate the 200th birthday of the nation in 1976. As the seat of the Continental Congress, where both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution were drafted, and the fledgling nation took form, Pennsylvania has a peculiar role to play in the commemoration as in the Sesquicentennial of 1926.

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer has just released the report of an ad hoc Bicentennial committee, which he approved, calling for the state to mark the occasion by striving to become "the model community of the world" by 1976.

It called for the elimination of ghettos and environmental pollution, the construction of at least one new model city and the completion of a statewide transportation system by 1967.

The report is unique in that it does not dwell alone on the past, glorious as Pennsylvania's part in the founding of the republic has been. The committee has set forth a splendid plan of preparation for the future. It looks ahead to the 300th birthday as it observes the 200th.

It should be a blueprint for the larger plan which the federal committee to celebrate the bicentennial is planning. By the way, whatever happened to that committee, appointed with such promise a couple of years ago? It should not be lost in the shuffle. It could reawaken the country to the spirit on which the nation was founded and inspire it to renew that spirit now to lead the world to freedom and democracy.

Having decided to become coeducational, Vassar, the Ivy League 104-year-old woman's college, is approaching it gradually. It is exchanging students on a one-for-one basis with nearby men's colleges—Trinity of Hartford, Williams of Williamstown and Colgate of Hamilton. It wants to get used to the idea before going "all-out" on coeducation.

"Careful, That May Be Pointing at Me, Too!"

Polls Unable to Reflect True Feeling of People

WASHINGTON — Public opinion polls and other reports which indicate that the gap between Nixon and Humphrey may be closing are, oddly enough, more or less welcome news to the Republican campaign managers. For several weeks now, they have been afraid that their party overconfident, and also that many Republicans in different parts of the country would not even bother to vote if they thought the outcome in their favor was assured.

Unquestionably there will be much more intensive work done by the Nixon organizations everywhere than would have been the case if the polls had shown an increase in Nixon strength, as this would have produced overconfidence.

Polls have their value, and in many an election have turned out to be accurate. But there are campaign years with different issues which do not affect the various sections of the country in the same way, and a sample taken in one area may not at all reflect the sentiment in another part of the country or even in another section of the state.

As long as the electoral system prevails, and a majority or plurality in each state decides which candidate shall get the state's electoral votes, it is unlikely that a sample of a few hundred voters is necessarily a a reflection of the final balloting, particularly in the more populous states.

Out of the 75 million persons expected to vote this year, there are probably not more than 10 or 15 million who could be considered as in the informed segment of the population — individuals who either have read speeches or familiarized themselves with the issues.

But what of the other 60 or 65 million? Many of them will go into the voting booth and pull a single lever, thus voting a straight ticket. Lots of them will vote the same way they have always voted. But there are millions who have acquired prejudices on one issue or another and have heard from their neighbors or friends that a particular candidate or party will not be helpful to them. The negative vote in many presidential elections has taken victory away from a candidate who was not only capable but obviously better qualified than his opponent.

Resentments arise, however, during the four years of an administration, and a large proportion of people vote for or against a party without knowing much about individual candidates.

It has been assumed that, with the introduction of radio and television campaigning, voters would be better informed by hearing what candidates have to say on public issues. Long before radio was introduced there were candidates who were spectacular enough to draw the biggest crowds during a campaign — perhaps out of curiosity — but sometimes even such a candidate was defeated by a landslide vote.

One or two issues that the people do understand can be decisive, and it does not much matter who the candidate is. This correspondent recalls particularly the campaign of 1920, when James M. Cox, Democrat, and three times governor of Ohio, made an excellent showing as he traveled all across the country. A relatively unknown candidate on the Republican ticket, Warren Harding, made few speeches but was elected by a landslide vote, primarily because the people were displeased with the Democratic administration which had been in power for eight years.

If anybody could poll the voter who isn't well informed and measure the various prejudices that can affect the election, we would have a better way of finding out how each state is going on November 5. But voters in nearly every district of a state would have to be canvassed in order to make sure whether the views were uniform. So, while the public opinion polls have often been a good indicator of the outcome of an election, they sometimes are unable to reflect the true feeling of people about presidential candidates.

Cool and Close to the Vest

Richard: Not the Lion-Hearted

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (NEA) — The Richard Nixon who seems to be on the verge of election as the next president of the United States is fundamentally a nonrisk-taker. And no one can easily guess what that portends for his prospective performance in the White House.

The hallmark on his 1968 quest for the presidency is its bent toward near-perfection. In vote-getting strategy, the Republican nominee has had one overriding goal — to keep control of the situation. This does not mean that he has taken no chances. Just to run for the office is to risk losing. He decided to enter the spring primaries at a time when he expected serious rivalry from Gov. George Romney of Michigan and conceivably could have lost one or more times.

At the last he has opened himself to the major panel shows after shunning them for two years. He has talked a great deal in public, knowing that anyone who does that will be subject to criticism of varying intensity from many people.

Nevertheless, the overwhelming evidence is that he has done only so much political gambling as he deemed inescapable. For instance, on the decision to enter the primaries an aide said: "He really had no choice. He had to act to try to eliminate his loser's image from 1960 and 1962."

On the matter of finally appearing on panel shows, the signs are strong that he agreed when he and some members of his staff became concerned that his noninvolvement in open debate with Vice President Humphrey and his limited exposure to hard questioning was leaving the impression he feared such encounters.

But it seems unassailable judgement that he does not like the uncertainty inherent in the free-wheeling press conference or debate. His management of himself is best when he has carefully anticipated difficulty and moved in advance to cope with it. He does not like the unexpected and more than once has been shaken by it.

The hard-battle challenges of the late John F. Kennedy in 1960 threw Nixon off programed stride and he never really recovered that year. Poor relations with the press in that campaign and in his 1962 bid for the California governorship also

Timely Quote

I look with great concern whenever I see federal agencies or courts trying to become local school boards. There has been too much of a tendency for the courts and federal agencies to use school integration for purposes having little to do with education and which do not serve a very useful purpose.

Drew Pearson Says

Agnew's Conflict of Interest Parallels Nixon's in 1952-60

WASHINGTON — There is an important principle involved in the conflict of interest revelations disclosed by the New York Times regarding Gov. Spiro T. Agnew. There is also an important parallel between Agnew's conflict and the revelations by the New York Post regarding the conflict of interest of a previous Vice President — Richard Nixon.

Mr. Nixon can't charge that it is gutter politics to review the facts, because they arose in 1952 in the matter of his $18,000 expense fund and in 1960 in the matter of the $205,000 Howard Hughes "loan" to Don Nixon, which has never been paid back. So this is no last-minute charge, but rather a diagnosis of an important principle.

That principle is whether there shall be two standards of ethical conduct, one for those running for the highest offices in government, another for lesser officials.

To illustrate: When Robert McNamara was up for confirmation as Secretary of Defense, he was required to sell around $1 million worth of Ford Motor Company stock. And when Charles E. Wilson became Secretary of Defense in the Eisenhower administration, he was required to sell $2 million worth of General Motors stock.

It was not that the Senate distrusted either McNamara or Wilson. They were known to be honorable men. It was, rather, the principle that no public official should be in a position of a conflict of interests.

Likewise with Gov. Agnew's stock interest in the Chesapeake National Bank while he was administering the banking laws of Maryland and the deposit of state funds in private banks; also with Nixon's personal fund when he was a Senator, and the Howard Hughes $205,000 loan when Nixon was Vice President. Nixon gave the excuse in the first instance that he used the $18,000 for office expenses; in the second case, that his brother faced bankruptcy. Others have faced bankruptcy but have not had a brother who was Vice President and whose influence helped them get a largely unsecured loan.

Truman Got Headlines

I was instrumental in exposing some minor conflicts of interest during the Truman administration, including hams, mink coats, deep freezes. I am quite sure that President Truman extended no favors to the company which gave Gen. Harry Vaughan a deep freeze for Mrs. Truman. But the newspapers headlined the gift and the editorial writers ate it up.

Newspapers during the Nixon $18,000 expense fund revelation were far more restrained. The Omaha World-Herald buried the story on page 52. As a result, and also because of an emotional Nixon telecast, the public had no idea of the extent to which Nixon performed favors and cast his vote in the Senate to benefit the contributors to his fund.

He intervened at the Justice Department on behalf of the tax problems of Dana Smith, who had raised the $18,000 for him. He intervened with the American Ambassador in Havana on behalf of Dana Smith after he incurred a $4,000 gambling debt at the Sans Souci casino and defaulted on his check.

Nixon voted right down the line in favor of the oil companies, and even sent out copies of Tideland Oil literature under his own frank. Fifteen of the contributors to his expense fund were oilmen.

Eleven of Nixon's donors were big real estate men. Nixon, in turn, voted to cut public housing from $0,000 to 500 units; voted to shorten rent controls by four months; finally, introduced an amendment to the defense bill aimed at sidetracking public housing.

It has been the failure of Congress to vote funds for public housing and slum clearance which has contributed materially to the present decay of the big cities and to crime in the streets. Mr. Nixon is now critical of crime in the streets, and proposes public housing to help remedy the plight of the cities. But as a Senator he voted with the real estate men who contributed to his secret fund.

Private Oil Bill

Two of Nixon's contributors were Tyler Woodward and William O. Anderson, who had filed applications for a lease to explore for oil on a military reservation, Camp Roberts, Calif. They found that oil exploration was not permissible on U.S. military property. Whereupon Nixon introduced a bill, S-1029, which would permit private individuals to stake out oil leases on military property.

The public, of course, had no way of knowing what Sen. Nixon's motives were in introducing his private bill. Nor had they any way of knowing who had contributed to his expense fund, or even that such a fund existed — until one courageous newspaper, the New York Post, revealed it.

The public also had no way of knowing what influenced Nixon's voting record in the Senate. A Senator is paid by all the people and is supposed to represent all the people of the United States, not a private group which secretly subsidizes him.

The issue of Gov. Agnew's current conflict of interest and Nixon's past conflicts of interest is, therefore, extremely important. And the public has a right to know about them. They cannot be brushed aside by a threat of a libel suit against the New York Times, or a Nixon charge that "This is the lowest kind of gutter politics." Nor should they have been smothered by an emotional telecast as was the case when Nixon ran for Vice President the first time.

Yugoslavs Are Set to Fight If the Soviet Army Invades

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — The old Balkan pot is boiling again. Despite Soviet denials, the Yugoslavs insist that the Russians are sending troops to their Bulgarian satellite for a possible invasion of their country and neighboring Albania.

Twice in recent days President Tito warned Moscow that he intends to fight against an attack by the Red army. "Whoever it may be, from whatever side, who tries to threaten our sovereignty and independence will meet an iron wall of our people," he said in a speech on Oct. 21.

The 77-year-old Yugoslav leader was sharply critical of Czechoslovakia's failure to resist Soviet aggression. Yugoslavia, he said, will continue to spend money on weapons "because a people not ready to fight with arms in its hands cannot be sure of its freedom and independence."

Apart from neighboring Albania, which supports Red China against Russia, Yugoslavia remains the last "revisionist" nation in the Balkans and East Europe. She has replaced Czechoslovakia as Moscow's favorite propaganda target.

The Yugoslavs even relate Moscow's increased pressure on their country to the unprecedented increase in Russian naval activities in the Mediterranean and their possible extension to the Adriatic.

This also explains why anti-Russian Albania which has long opposed Tito's "liberal communism" has decided to bury the ideological hatchet and seek a rapprochement with Yugoslavia. Fearful of a Russian attack from the sea, Albania is currently reinforcing her coastal defenses with Red China's assistance.

Thus, while the NATO nations, including the United States, continue to explore the possibility of an East-West detente, Russia's opponents in the Communist camp are preparing for war.

Marxist-Leninists themselves, the leaders of Red China, Yugoslavia and Albania understand better than the West the duplicity of their Marxist-Leninist counterparts in the Kremlin. They see Moscow's "new" theory that Russia has the right to intervene to destroy anti-Soviet movements in Communist lands as a permanent threat to their sovereignty.

"With their invasion of Czechoslovakia the Russians have crossed the Rubicon." This is the slogan repeated daily in the Yugoslav information media.

A prominent writer, Zoran Gluscevic, even compared Moscow's rape of Czechoslovakia with a short story by the famous Czech author Franz Kafka who, 50 years ago, wrote about "primitive hordes" invading from the north.

The manner in which the Russians and their Bulgarian, Polish and East German satellites are suppressing the Czechoslovak resembles Kafka's "nomads," Gluscevic wrote.

Everything the Russians do is based on the logic of force which means that "common sense has no value for the aggressors." They are like Dafka's "strolling conquerors, whose professions are looting and conquest."

In the opinion of Yugoslav leaders, the "unpredictability" of the Soviet rulers is an immediate and not just a potential threat. They take a grim view of Bulgaria's claims to Macedonia, that part of Yugoslavia which fronts on Bulgaria.

Macedonia is a traditional source of irredentism in the Balkans. Bulgaria's claims to the territory, obviously orchestrated by Moscow, have mounted in recent weeks.

According to the Yugoslav daily newspaper Vjesnik, Bulgaria's anti-Macedonian campaign is being used as a pretext for an eventual Soviet attack on Yugoslavia.

There is no doubt that, unlike the Czechoslovaks, the Yugoslavs are determined to resist Russian aggression. Tito made this clear when he recently met with Nicholas deB. Katzenbach, American undersecretary of state.

Though a confirmed Communist, Tito asked for aid from America should Communist Russia attack Yugoslavia.

"Dad, in your day, it was just 'which fraternity do I join.' Now, it's 'which RADICAL GROUP do I join.' too!"

Golden Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM GROTHKOPP of 18 Pearl Street Kingston, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary aboard the liner, Europa, on a two week cruise of the Caribbean. They were married November 2, 1918 in Mount Vernon. They have two sons, William and Ralph, and seven grandchildren.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

FILLED MILK AVAILABLE

Vegetable oils are much less expensive than milk fat. In the same way as vegetable oils are used to make margarine at a lower cost than butter, so vegetable oils can be added to skim milk to make a product less expensive than whole milk. Products resembling whole milk but made with skimmed milk or reconstituted non-fat dry milk and vegetable oil are called "filled milk," says Louise M. Kakargo, Extension Home Economist.

The Federal Filled Milk Act prohibits filled milk from crossing state lines. However, filled milk can be made in New York State if it is properly labeled and sold within the State border. In our State, filled milk falls under the "mellorcream law." Mellorcream products are those which contain vegetable oil and are similar in appearance, odor and taste to milk, cream, or half and half.

Filled milk has been sold in New York for the past year. It usually has a fanciful brand name in large print on the label, but can be identified by the term "mellorcream" or "vegetable oil product" also on the label. The list of ingredients include skimmed milk or non-fat dry milk and vegetable oil. Under present definition filled milk may not be labeled "filled milk" in New York State.

Consumer Awareness and Use of Filled Milk

In many New York super-markets filled milk has been selling from 5 to 13 cents less than whole milk for a half-gallon container. The filled milk is sold in the dairy case, sometimes next to other milk products. When filled milk has been advertised, it is implied that it is the same as milk, but less expensive and contains no animal fat.

However, a recent New York State regulation states that when mellorcream and liquid dairy products are displayed in the same case or refrigerator in a store, they must be separated from each other by some other product.

Current research is aimed at producing a more accurate consumer profile of mellorcream using families.

Imitation Milk On the Horizon

Filled milk is sometimes called imitation milk; in fact, the laws of some states require the words "imitation milk" on the label of filled milk. Nevertheless, many dairy experts prefer to reserve the term "imitation" for a substitute manufactured from vegetable oils and other non-dairy ingredients.

Imitation milk is included in the New York State definition of mellorcream. Although little or no imitation milk is now on the market in this State, if it is sold it must be labeled "mellorcream," "a vegetable oil blend," "Not a dairy product," or "contains no milk or milk fat." The only sure way to distinguish it from filled milk is from the list of ingredients. Neither skim milk nor non-fat dry milk would be included in imitation milk. Instead the ingredients would probably include water, vegetable oils, corn sugar, starch, soy protein, sodium caseinate, vitamins, minerals, stabilizers, and emulsifiers.

As they are now being made, imitation milks differ significantly from filled milk in flavor and nutritional quality as well as in ingredients. The flavor of filled milk is generally considered to be very similar to that of whole milk. But to date imitation milk flavor is reported to be inferior to whole milk for most population groups. But imitation milks, as they have been appearing on the market, are not in any sense nutritional substitutes for whole milk for any population group.

So far they have been extremely low in protein and calcium two nutrients for which milk is particularly important. Because of these differences between filled and imitation milks, many people involved in the consumer interest are concerned about the fact that both products can presently be sold under the same "mellorcream" or "vegetable oil product" label. These people hope that the new legislation will encourage changes in the definition of the two products so they can be easily distinguished from each other.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I love preserved baby shoes, but dislike the "bronzed" type, as they are too artificial looking. A method I use is much nicer, I think.

Leave the infant shoes "as is" — soiled, scuffed or what have you. This will add to their nostalgic beauty.

Buy a small amount of plaster of Paris — costs just a few cents. Using water, mix enough in an old dish to fill both shoes. Make it into a VERY thick but workable "dough."

Completely fill the shoe from the toe right up to the top, with the shoe being laced up and tied. Pack it in firmly and FULLY.

While still wet, smooth over the part at the shoe top and using a nut-pick or toothpick mark that smoothed area with your desired data. (I put "Judy" on the top area of one shoe and "1942" on the top of the other.) Then let 'em set to harden.

My daughter's shoes are over 25 years old now and still stand firm as cement, all scuffed and dirty and oh, so precious.

... Evelyn Cerutti

Works! And is adorable, may I say?

... Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Here is a terrific way to protect a cake platter without distracting or taking away the beauty of serving the cake attractively.

When cutting a cake on a paper doily, you will notice that some slices of cake served have a part of the doily with it. Moisture from the cake dampens the doily and its cuts or tears easily.

Well, cover the surface of the platter and the paper doily with clear plastic wrap, taking care to fold and tuck under all sides under the platter. Then slice your cake and you'll never have a trace of paper doily served with it.

... Vicky Levy

Dear Heloise:

I got so tired of going back into the bathroom to stop the water running in the tank when the plunger didn't slide down the rod.

So, I grabbed the first thing I could find — which was a cake of soap and rubbed it along the stopper rod. Lo and behold, it did the trick.

... Esther Mae

If the soap washes off and the rod sticks again, rub some petroleum jelly on it and it will last longer.

You can also use a piece of steel wool on the rod to remove the accumulated minerals.

... Heloise

Dear Heloise:

For an attractive and inexpensive curtain rod try this . . .

Get a discarded broom or mop handle, a package of rubber slipon tips for the bottom of chair legs, and a pair of brass curtain rod brackets.

Cut the handle the desired length, slip a rubber tip on both ends, paint rod and tips the desired color.

You may then shirr straight curtains on the rod or use pleated curtains hung with brass rings.

I used the idea in the nursery and painted the rods pink.

... Hazel Harrison

Silver Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. THADDEUS MUSIALKIEWICZ of 35 Vincent Street, Town of Ulster, were the guests of honor at a silver anniversary party Saturday night, October 26, at the Capri 400 Restaurant. Army at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and daughter Myra, at home. The couple were married October 31, 1943, by the Rev. Stanislaus J. Malinowski at the Immaculate Conception Church of Kingston. The honor attendants were Eileen O'Neil Schrader and Casimir Musialkiewicz. Mr. Musialkiewicz is the supervisor of the Town of Ulster and Mrs. Musialkiewicz is employed by Dr. Robert F. Mosely. ## Fashion on Foot: It's Skin on Skin

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The boot that grew shyly, tentatively from a tiny, ankle-hugging white baby shoe has reached hitherto unexpected fashion heights.

The nanny shoe with a klunky heel formerly unavailable except in an orthopedic shop has become the standard silhouette in shoe fashions.

What this footwear has in common is that in both instances women have sworn on their Womans Wear Dailies that they would never, ever, wear them.

Yet they are.

Since the innocuous birth of the boot, it has not only grown longer, but thinner and more supple.

This year's versions are as lightweight and clingy as gloves, preserving every precious leg curve. They not only reach up, up, and up, they suspend from supporters like stockings; and they attach to lightweight panties like leotards.

Some boots are meant to be peeled off indoors like banana skins and others are meant to be worn inside and out-of-doors, day and night.

Perhaps the odd shapes of heels have had to fight the most resistance. To too many people the thickness and height of some heels, combined with wide toes have too much resembled correctional shoes. But this is an age of perversity where the least likely of styles is the most acceptable.

So heels are the big show of shoes. Make them glitter. Shape them like doorknobs. Make them transparent. Or just make them monstrous as long as you make heels different.

That's the rule of fashion for shoes this winter.

DO-IT-YOURSELF MARKS

NEW YORK (AP)—You can put your own distress marks on tables, cabinets, dressers and other home-finished "antiques" by hitting them with short lengths of chain. Do the whacking before you apply your antique finishing to the dented surfaces.

Many furniture manufacturers use the same technique to achieve the antique look. You can get suitable lengths of chain at most hardware and lumber stores. It's best to use a new chain. Old rusty chains could discolor wood.

Kingston Takes Second

Clarkstown Wins Section 9

BEAR MOUNTAIN — The Kingston High School cross country team, with last week's defeat by Newburgh in the DUSO championship still stinging, swept past the Goldbacks in the Section Nine meet here yesterday, but ended up finishing second again anyway.

Clarkstown, rated the pre-tournament favorite, nosed out Kingston 72-75 after trailing the Maroons almost the entire dis-point total for a fifth place finish behind Tappan Zee. Wayne Slicker, the Kingston ace, showed that he was back to his good form by pulling in the second spot in a time of 13:18. Jim Gilpatrick, continued to show improvement as he romped to a surprising fourth place finish, beating out Kevin Barringer of Middletown.

Other Kingston runners that finished in the scoring were Ralph Veytia 15th, Gary Short 23rd, and Robert Burger 31st. The Maroon led Clarkstown through the first four scoring runners, opening up a massive 6-15 lead with two in and watching it get slowly whittled down.

With three runners across the finish line, Kingston held a 21-26 lead and with four it was 44-47.

Minisink Valley was the surprise team of the day as they broke Highland Falls streak of six straight Section Nine Class C crowns 58-72. Bill Wilbur of Minisink had the best time of all three class races finishing in a 13:01 clocking.

In the Class B meet, Suffern took the crown with 43 points followed by Nanuet and Monroe-Woodbury. Port Jervis finished a distant fourth Rondout Valley and Ontario placed a somewhat disappointing eighth and ninth in the "B" standings, but Pat Lapiano of Rondout captured eighth place. His brother Jim also did well finishing 15th.

Pine Bush, the UCAI champion, wrapped up third place behind Highland Falls with 82 points as Angelo Mercurio took 12th in 13:57 and Pete Benitez came in 13th for the Bushmen. The fourth place team was Highland with 102 points followed by New Paltz 124, Wallkill 137, Ellenville 166 and Liberty 219. Marlboro took up the end spot with 229. Walkill's Crawford and Powell came in ninth and eleventh respectively but the team didn't have the strength down the middle to move up among the leaders.

Tom Mansell was the one bright spot in Ellenville's hopes capturing a second place finish in the class C meet. Highland's Steve Smith was the fifth place finisher.

George Cook of Highland Falls, who beat Wilbur and captured first place in last week's Orange County Inter-scholastic Athletic League meet was a distant third behind Mansell finishing in 13:29.

Next Saturday, Nov. 9 the intersectionals will be held on Long Island with the top seven runners and winning teams inclusive from the Section Nine Meet being invited.

Billy Casper Takes Lead in Lucky Open

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Consistent Billy Casper shot a six under par 65 Friday and a young Dave Stockton, who celebrates his 27th birthday Saturday, came home with a 66 to share the second round lead in the $100,000 Lucky Open golf tournament with 36 hole totals of nine under par 133.

Casper, admittedly playing his best golf this year, reached 14 greens in regulation and took 26 putts in all, while Stockton, hobbling around on a heavily taped right ankle, went one better as he took 25 putts, including 11 one putt greens, to tie for the lead.

That left Casper and Stockton two strokes ahead of Don Massengale and Miller Barber who had 67 and 69 rounds respectively on another day in which the touring pros tore up the par 71 Harding Park Course.

Terry Dill, Randy Petri, Jimmy Wright and Ken Still had second round 66's, Joe Goldstrand, Massengale, Al Balding, Bob E. Smith and Bob

Duden had 67's, 14 players had 68's and 16 had 69's. The 136 group, six under par and three strokes behind Casper and Stockton, was made up of Charles Coody, who matched Casper's 65 with a six bird sprinkled round, Dow Finsterwald, Still, Bob Rosburg and Bob Smith.

Doug Sanders, Jack Fleck, Mac McLendon and Duden were at 137, while five strokes off the pace at 138 were Chi Chi Rodriguez, Bobby Lunn, Jim Langley, J.C. Goosie, Frank Boynton, Jacky Cupit, Billy Maxwell and Balding.

U.S. Open champ Lee Trevino shot his second-straight 70 and was among the group of 75 players who made the cut for the final two rounds. Bob Goaly, the Masters champ, failed to survive after shooting a second round 73 for a 144 total.

The cut was set at one over par 143. Joining Golby on the sidelines were such as George Knudsen, Marty Fleckman, who had a second round 69, Bob George Washbourne, who is better known as the Supervisor of Science in the Kingston Consolidated school system than as a bowler, modestly admits he had everything going for him, when he recently slammed the two highest scores of the 1968-69 bowling season.

A 179 average bowler, Washbourne electrified the local ten pin world with a rousing 290 solo and 735 series. The scores marked a spectacular improvement over his previous career highs of 240 and 642.

Washbourne, who had only one open frame in the series (a chop on the 6-9-10 setup) fired 26 strikes enroute to his triple. He opened the 290 game with a 4-pin tap, strung 11 strikes in the row, then added two more at the start of the second game for 12 in a row. His other games were 222 and 223.

"My ball was really moving," he said, "I had more than my share of cross hits and it seemed that everytime I got even a fraction of the headpin it was a strike."

Washbourne is a twice-a-week bowler, who uses a semi-finger-tip grip and throws a three-quarter roller.

He recalls being nervous only once during the memorable, "I knew I had 290 in the wood when I came up for the last frame in the first game," he explained. My first loss carried the second shot in the 1-3 pocket, then struck out with a light sweep.

A six-year bowler, Washbourne slumped to a 176 average last season, but the 735 blast zoomed his International League average to 185.

"That's a pretty handsome figure for me," he said, "and I'm hoping I can maintain it through the season."

Washbourne said he seldom practices. His other weekly outing is with his wife, Peggy, in the Friday Night Mixer at Ferraro's Bowlerama.

In addition to his duties with the Kingston school system, he teaches a biology course at Ulster County Community College.

"That big series was the big thrill of my career, but I have no illusion about being a big time bowler," he philosophized. "I like the sport for its recreational values and it's a pleasant change of pace. I like to think of myself as just an average bowler who had a bigger night than I ever expected."

Giants Face Colts; Rams Host Detroit

By MIKE BRYSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

Halloween may be over, but the New York Giants will be subjected to a little haunting Sunday when the rampaging Baltimore Colts make their first appearance in Yankee Stadium in a decade.

Last summer, New York traded Earl Morrell to the Colts, and the ex-Giant backup quarterback has turned out to be more than an adequate replacement for injured Johnny Unitas. In fact, the Colts' only loss this season—to Cleveland—came when the interception-plagued Unitas made his only appearance this year.

Showdown Vital

The National Football League showdown is vital to both teams. Baltimore, 6-1, is locked in a first place tie with Los Angeles in the Coastal Division, while New York, 5-2, trails Dallas by only a game in the Capitol Division.

Incidentally, the last time New York and Baltimore hooked up in Yankee Stadium was in 1958, when the Colts edged the Giants in that memorable sudden death title game, considered one of pro football's greatest matches. Dallas will try to one for Monday night's 28-17 upset loss to Green Bay at New Orleans, 3-4. The Cowboys' Don Meredith has a broken nose, but it's not expected to prevent him from guiding the NFL's most potent scoring attack.

Rams and Lions

Los Angeles, which had its 14-game victory streak snapped by Baltimore 27-10 last week, plays host to Detroit, 3-3-1. The Lions, who despite their poor record share first with Green Bay in the Central Division, are expected to be without top running back Mel Farr. He suffered a strained tendon last week and missed most of Detroit's 14-7 loss to San Francisco. Running back Tommy Mason was a questionable starter for the Rams.

Green Bay Is Tough

Green Bay plays host to Chicago, 3-4, in the 99th renewal of the league's oldest series. The injury-hampered Bears got off to a miserable start, but have won their last two games, including a 26-24 squeaker from Minnesota last week.

Cleveland and St. Louis, tied for the Century Division top with 4-3 records, both take to the road. The Browns tackle San Francisco, 4-3, in the first regular season meeting between the two teams since 1962. It shapes up as a passing duel between Cleveland's Bill Nelson and the 49ers' John Brodie.

Cards Favored

St. Louis is a heavy favorite to hand winless Philadelphia its eighth straight loss. The Cardinals, winners of three in a row including last week's 31-17 conquest of New Orleans, report everyone is in top shape, while the Eagles have half a dozen players on the injury list.

Minnesota, 3-4, and Washington, 3-4, meet for the first time ever on the Vikings' field. Redskins quarterback Sonny Jurgensen is hampered by a cracked rib, but he will use a protective vest and is expected to see considerable action.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, whose only victory this season was a last-minute 6-3 triumph over Philadelphia last week, meet an equally hapless outfit when they travel to Atlanta. The Falcons' only victory in seven games was an upset over Green Bay.

Oakland Faces Chiefs In Western Showdown

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

The San Diego Chargers will have one eye on the Miami Dolphins and the other on the scoreboard Sunday during their American Football League game. And, at the same time, the Oakland Raiders will have both eyes on the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Chiefs put their six-game winning streak on the line against the defending champion Raiders, who are tied with San Diego 1½ games back of Kansas City.

So, while the Chargers are working on the Dolphins, they'll be extremely interested in how the Raiders manage against the Chiefs. Victories by San Diego and Oakland would create a three-way Western Division snarl but should KC beat the Raiders and the Chargers stumble against the Dolphins, the race would just about be over.

In other AFL action Sunday, Buffalo is at New York, Denver at Boston and Houston at Cincinnati.

If San Diego gets too preoccupied with scoreboard watching, Miami's Larry Dsonka, Bob Griese and Karl Noonan could cause the Chargers some problems. Csonka rushed for 97 yards against Denver last week and Noonan caught four passes for 81 yards while Griese passed the 1,000-yard mark for the season.

The Chargers lead the league in passing yardage and over-all offense with John Hadl's 15 touchdown passes. Kansas City whipped the Raiders in their first meeting using a conventional T offense and throwing only three passes and rushed for 294 yards.

Now, the question Oakland Coach John Rauch must wrestle with is whether the Chiefs will go with the full house of two tight ends and three running backs again. KC could switch to the conventional pro offense with wide receivers Otis Taylor and Gloster Richardson, both healthy again.

New York, with a formidable two-game edge in the Eastern race gets a chance to avenge one of its defeats when it faces lowly Buffalo. The Bills' only victory this season was a five-interception spree against Joe Namath and the Jets last month.

Floyd Little busted loose for 126 yards last week—the second best rushing day by anyone in Denver history. Rookie quarterback Marlin Briscoe came off the Bronco bench in the second half and scored twice, leading Denver's come-from-behind victory over the Dolphins.

Houston, still hoping to get back in the Eastern race, will have Pete Beathard back at quarterback against the Bengals. Beathard has recovered from an appendectomy.

Cincinnati has dropped five straight but unveiled a strong rookie runner in Paul Robinson, who gained 159 yards against Oakland last week.

Rondout Valley Open House Slated for Education Week

Observance of American Education Week—Nov. 10-16—will be marked with an open house Nov. 12 at the Middle School at 7:30 p. m. by the Rondout Valley Middle School Parent-Teacher Association. The theme of the observance will be "America has a good thing going—its schools."

American Education Week was initiated in 1921 under the joint sponsorship of the National Education Association and the American Legion. The United States Office of Education joined these groups in 1922, and six years later the National Congress of Parents and Teachers joined.

The executive committee of the Rondout Valley association, of which Mrs. Josephine Cahill of Stone Ridge is corresponding secretary, will meet the third Tuesday of each month at the Middle School. A news letter will be sent out each month to parents.

An open house program will full of satisfaction in being able to be held at the Mid-Hudson Workshop, 212 Washington Street, Poughkeepsie, from first discussed in 1947 and incorporated the following year. Three area men conceived the plan for the purpose of providing people with certain physical handicaps the opportunity to find gainful employment. They are Dause Bibby, former general manager of the Workshop, Benjamin J. Van Winkle, former executive secretary of the Mid-Hudson Industrial Association and Stephen Puff, director of the Poughkeepsie Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. The 20-year experience of the Workshop has been referred to as a gratifying period for many who have served on the Board of Directors and committees without compensation and who have witnessed satisfaction that has been earned by the employees who are handicapped by muscular dystrophy, arthritis, cerebral palsy, polio, diabetes, emphysema, multiple sclerosis, or who are cardiacs, amputees, deaf or blind.

Man Innocent In Murder Trial

ALBION, N.Y. (AP)—A 30-year-old man from this Orleans County village has been found innocent of a charge of first-degree manslaughter in connection with the shooting of Willie Johnson on July 28.

The Orleans County Court jury found Rickey Young innocent Friday after deliberating for two hours.

Johnson was killed outside a restaurant in the nearby town of Gaines after he and another man argued, police said.

The prosecution contended Young was the other man in the case.

However, the defense produced witnesses who testified during the two-day trial that Young was not present at the shooting.

LOSING CAUSE—If goalies could stop Blackhawk center Stan Mikita (20) in situations like this, it would be a lot harder for the chucky Czechoslovakian to continually lead the National Hockey League in scoring. But Gary Smith and the Oakland Seals did the next best thing, beating Chicago 5-2. (UPI Telephoto)

Not for You to Question

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: There is a girl at school who can't go to any of the dances because it is against her RELIGION. I think that is just about the dumbest thing I have ever heard.

I have told this to some other kids and they agreed that it must be a very stupid religion that won't let their people dance. I can't understand a religion like that. Can you?

DONNAJEAN: There are some "religions" that disapprove of dancing. It isn't necessary to "understand" the other person's religion. Just respect it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a paper order? And what do I do if route, and one of my customers reports me?

When the people came home and found 2 week's newspapers piled up in front of their door they got very mad at me. I tried to tell the man that since he didn't tell me they were going out of town, I thought the best thing to do was to keep leaving the newspaper. He called me an idiot and threatened to quit taking the paper. If he does, I'll be in trouble with my boss.

Was I wrong to keep leaving the paper when I had no other

DEAR ALEX: Tell your boss what happened, and ask him what the policy of the newspaper is when a customer leaves town without notice. A collection of newspapers in front of a door is an announcement that nobody is home. This is more helpful to a burglar than a key in the front door. If your customer quits (and I doubt that he will) you are blameless.

DEAR ABBY: Our neighborhood is being downgraded to one family who own their own home and take no pride in it whatsoever. Why does one family have the right to ruin the looks of a whole neighborhood?

Their carport looks like a junk heap. They never pick up trash or anything else unless it's in the way of their lawn mower, then they just slide it over. I saw a pile of trash that was swept up on their porch 3 months ago, and it's still there.

I hope you publish this so these people will recognize themselves and maybe do something about it. We have tried everything without coming right out and asking them to clean it up. They are good people.

DEAR HAD IT: So why don't you try the most (and probably only effective) course next. Tell them their yard is a disgrace to the neighborhood and to please clean it up.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Point Count Reveals King

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The free-wheeling Canadians stopped at four clubs with the North-South cards while the even more free-wheeling Australians went on to five.

The bidding in the box is when Dick Cummings of Australia sat South. We aren't exactly sure of the significance of North's one-trump bid, in any event, Dick did bid four clubs with his four-card suit and we assume that it showed some sort of tremendous club support with little defense against the opposition.

North carried on to five clubs and West opened the three of spades. East won the trick with the king and returned the deuce of hearts. South ducked and West took his king. West returned a heart to declarer's ace.

Cummings led a diamond to dummy's king and led a club. East false-carded with the 10 but that did no good. Cummings thought things over carefully and noted that East had failed to open the bidding but had shown up with the ace and king of spades and probably with the jack also. (West would lead the queen from queen-jack.)

The Canadian style does not allow for a pass with the king of clubs also, so Dick played his ace and hoped. His hopes were realized. The king dropped.

We don't like to criticize players at any time, but we do feel that East was careless when he played the king of spades at trick one. Had he played the ace he would have fooled his partner. West would assume that South held that spade king. At the same time, the foolery could not possibly cost West anything. There weren't going to be any more spade tricks for the defense in any event.

After that ace play, things would have proceeded in the same fashion and it is possible that South would still have dropped West's king of clubs. We will never know.

While 35 men have been president, only 14 had been chief justice of the Supreme Court, prior to Earl Warren's resignation. The World Almanac says. One man, William Howard Taft, served in both positions.

Only Edward D. White in 1910, Charles Evans Hughes in 1930 and Harlan Fiske Stone in 1941 had been associate justices prior to being appointed chief justice.

Cowsills--Phenomenal Rise

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The rise of the Cowsills, the celebrated singing family that will have a half-hour special on NBC-TV Nov. 23, is a show business phenomenon.

But the rise of their attractive young managers, a husband-and-wife team named Leonard and Myrna Stogel, is also pretty remarkable.

Until 1965, Leonard, now 33, was in the import business in New York, specializing in housewares. Myrna has a long family background in the music business—her father being a veteran figure in the industry. Leonard, who resembles his new next door-neighbor in Los Angeles, Pierre Salinger, major deal with MGM—at a time when a family act was going against the trend. Soon MGM was enthusiastic too, getting behind the Cowsills.

Of his own business and his whole-scale commitment to the Cowsills, Stogel says:

"We went for broke. If it clicked, we were home. If not, we were in trouble—committing so much time to one act."

Get Commercial Backer

Financially speaking, a tremendous break came when a commercial arrangement with the American Dairy Association was set this year for $1 million.

Like most managers with a hot act in this town, the Stogels hope to expand into television Nov. 23 on NBC-TV. It is a big month in the life of the Cowsills Stogel was accomplishing a—depending on the usual—other audience reaction—the Cowsills' special could result in a series. Some shrewd show business brains feel they have the makings of an institutionalized act.

The Cowsills made their network television debut with CBS-TV's "Ed Sullivan" a year ago. In February, they were featured in a two-hour special on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Says Stogel: "They can perform in any facet of the music business. They can do a motown show in Detroit, country-western in Nashville, or hard rock. Or, for older people, all the standards."

And now the target date is set for a two-hour special on NBC-TV. It is a big month in the life of the Cowsills Stogel was accomplishing a—depending on the usual—

Mr. Small — It is. The seeds are all inside.

AT DALEY SPECTACULAR—Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and Sam Shapiro, Illinois governor, show their approval as Vice President Hubert Humphrey greets the crowd at the Chicago Stadium. The Democratic candidate rode in a torchlight parade and gave a speech at the stadium as he brought his campaign to Chicago, the city where he was nominated. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Chicago Goes Wild for HHH

By MERRIMAN SMITH

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hubert Humphrey returned to Chicago Friday night and received the most thunderous reception of his presidential campaign. It was a far cry from his last visit.

Two months ago Humphrey won the Democratic party's nomination in a bitter convention. In the streets, police and dissidents fought the infamous "Battle of Chicago." Parades were not allowed.

Friday night was different. A line of Humphrey supporters two and one-half miles long marched in the now traditional torchlight parade Chicago Mayor Richard Daley tosses at the end of each presidential campaign for the Democratic nominee.

It may have been the most tumultuous public success in Humphrey's long political career. The five-mile parade from the Loop to Chicago Stadium was thronged with both marchers and spectators.

Democratic party spokesmen said 200,000 paraded, although it appeared their original estimate of 100,000 was more nearly correct. However, the prediction one million persons would watch the traditional march did not seem to be far off the mark.

The candidate later flew to Youngstown, Ohio. He campaigns there today, then goes to New York City suburbs.

Humphrey obviously was jubilant. Hatless, he stood all the way in the car originally built for the visit of Pope Paul VI to New York. In his car were Daley—architect of the parade —and other party candidates.

If it was Daley's show, there was no doubt about who was the star. Humphrey's car had to stop repeatedly as throngs of people surged around, presenting a field of arms into which the candidate plunged his hands. Confetti swirled and sizzled in light Chicago breezes as his motorcade slowly made its way from the packed downtown area, accelerating to 35 miles an hour along West Madison Street's skid row to the stadium. He was never more than a few seconds from a marching band, and party faithful interrupted his words every sentence or two with applause.

There were no incidents as the giant parade slowly coiled past the stadium. As Humphrey entered the hall and mounted the speaker's stand before about 13,000 persons—the stadium holds 18,000, but his speech seemed an anticlimax to many party faithful after a one-hour march—he paid tribute to the leaders of dissent.

He invoked the memory of the Robert and John Kennedy and of U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson. He did not mention by name Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, but said:

"Those brave men who led dissent last Spring have made their mark on policy, have helped the search for peace, and are coming home, and justice once more is the cause that binds us."

The vice president earlier Friday had appeared before 5,000 persons at Southgate, Mich., 10,000 in Peoria, Ill., and 5,000 at Rockford, Ill.

Nixon Making Bid For Texas Votes

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Richard Nixon battled today for Texas' vital 25 electoral votes. Taking the fight into the very heart of Lyndon B. Johnson country and pledging unabashedly to do something special for Texans.

The first item on Nixon's itinerary today was a morning flight to Austin and a speech attacking the Johnson administration's directions of the U.S. space effort.

In remarks prepared for delivery there, Nixon said the United States was now second in space to the Soviet Union. He blamed it on what he claimed was the administration's "passion for parity" instead of superiority, a charge which he applied to American defense strength last week.

It was probably coincidental, but the timing of Nixon's speech ran smack into events 75 miles away at the LBJ ranch, where Johnson was presenting medals to the three Apollo 7 astronauts.

Austin was the fourth of five cities on Nixon's tour of the state. He hit Fort Worth, Lubbock and San Antonio Friday. Today he was to fly to El Paso after Austin and then on to California where he will remain until election day.

Nixon scoured Texas in the company of his wife Pat, their two daughters, Julie and Tricia, Julie's fiancé David Eisenhower, Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., gubernatorial candidate Paul Eggers and three planeloads of staff and press.

Everywhere he went Friday, Nixon tied his pleas for votes to an unabashed promise to give Texans special treatment.

Will Keep F111

In Fort Worth, he assured citizens that contrary to what opposition newspaper advertisements were saying, he had no intention of scrapping the Air Force version of the F111 fighter bomber.

In Lubbock he renewed his oath of fidelity to the 27 percent oil depletion allowance and told cotton growers that he would do something about cotton imports.

In San Antonio, a city with a large block of Mexican-American voters, Nixon observed there had never been a Mexican-American in the cabinet or on the Supreme Court. He said changes would be made when he became president.

Nixon also charged Democratic nominee Hubert Humphrey was one of the "fuzzy thinkers" who could get the country into a war because they do not know how to keep the peace.

What the country wants, Nixon said, "is a new doctor (in the White House)—we're not going to hire a pharmacist."

The GOP nominee said Humphrey was "the most expensive senator in American history." He said the voters must choose between "Nixon with money in your pocket or Humphrey with his hand in your pocket."

Nixon accused his opponent of confusing the Vietnam peace negotiations in Paris by his campaign behavior. In this connection he contended that Humphrey has "the fastest, loosest tongue in American politics."

Humphrey has tried to capitalize on the "Tricky Dick" label the Democrats hung on Nixon in the past.

The Democrat called Nixon "the No. 1 double-talker of all times."

In their attacks on each other, Humphrey and Nixon have left personal criticisms of George C. Wallace, the third party candidate largely to their running-mates.

However, Humphrey said Wallace's record as governor of Alabama made "Scrooge look like a social worker."

During the storm of invective Nixon came up with an assessment of the situation.

"You know politicians are behind when they start to name call, when they start to panic, to hit below the belt," he said.

It seemed to be a question of which was the pot and which the kettle.

Foul Wind Blowing Campaign to Finale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The early presidential campaign featuring set speeches and stuffy position papers has slipped sharply into a name calling contest.

In the final weeks of the campaign, Republican Richard M. Nixon has stopped referring to Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey as merely "the other fellow" and has taken to slugging hard at Humphrey.

This direct approach by Nixon has been welcomed by the Democrats as indicating they were getting under the political skin of an opponent they had all but despaired of bringing down from the high level clouds of campaigning. They are answering in kind.

There could be argument over who started it, but Humphrey's designation of Nixon as "Richard the chicken-hearted" for his GOP opponent's alleged failure to grapple with the issues triggered some sharp responses.

Nixon accused Humphrey of "adult delinquency" and of "sitting on his hands and watching the United States become a nation where 50 per cent of the women are frightened to walk within a mile of their homes at night."

He said Humphrey had "a lackadaisical, do-nothing approach to law and order." Blaming the ills of the country on the Johnson administration, Nixon said Humphrey is "a man who has trotted along meekly behind his master."

New Mystery of Sea: Captain Disappears

NEW YORK (UPI)—Maritime circles speculated today about a new mystery of the sea—the disappearance of the captain of the luxury-cruise liner Argentina, lost overboard in the narrow waters between Cuba and Haiti.

Moore-McCormack Lines, owner of the $26 million ship, would say only that Capt. Charles G. Reid was lost at sea Wednesday, sometime after the Argentina left Kingston, Jama-ca, on the way to Hamilton, Bermuda.

In Hamilton, where the liner docked Friday, passengers said the Argentina broke out the man-overboard flag at about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday while the ship was steaming through the Windward Passage which separates Cuba from Haiti.

They said the ship circled for six hours in an area about 26 miles east of Cuba while crewmen searched the seas in small boats. No announcement was made, and rumors circulating aboard the Argentina identified the missing man as anyone from the captain to a cook's helper who fell overboard while dumping garbage.

A Coast Guard helicopter from the U.S. base at Guantanamo, Cuba, aided the search but found no trace of the missing man.

Officers of the Argentina declined comment on the captain's disappearance. News-men in Bermuda were not allowed anywhere near the ship.

The Coast Guard said its Miami office was notified Wednesday that the Argentina had lost a man overboard. It was not until Friday that the missing man was identified as the liner's captain.

Since Reid was lost in international waters, it was not certain what country could claim jurisdiction in the case. Moore-McCormack said it had flown a team of lawyers and investigators to Bermuda to sift the available evidence.

Cooking Tips Using Subtle, Fine Flavors

A new cookbook is now being prepared for publication by Senora Clarita del Palacio Valdes de Garcis. It is, of course, about Spanish cooking.

Senora Clarita is uniquely qualified to write such a cookbook. Her father owned the Spanish Park Restaurant in Tampa (now operated by her two brothers). Her husband, Manual Garcia, owns Tampa's famous Las Novedades Spanish Restaurant. And her son, Manny, a graduate of Cornell Hotel and Restaurant School, now assists his father.

Senora Clarita has gathered some of her recipes from the files of Las Novedades, from relatives in Spain (an uncle was chef at the Royal Palace of Madrid before the fall of the monarchy). A few are her own creation.

In her book, the author gives some cooking tips for obtaining the fine Spanish flavors. Here we have a preview of these tips.

1. When using wine in cooking never compromise quality. Poor wine will damage food irreparably. Make up your mind that there is no such thing as "cooking wine" and use the same wine in your food as you serve with it.

2. Crush or bruise spices before adding them to the recipe for better flavor.

3. When you marinate meat, use a long crochet hook (or metal skewer) to pierce it several times, so that marinade can penetrate.

4. A whole ripe tomato as well as an unpeeled, crushed garlic clove should be added to the soup pot when making either chicken or beef broth, in addition to the more usual celery rib and whole onion. For fuller flavor, allow soup to cool completely before removing vegetables and meat. One quarter teaspoon of powdered saffron, added after cooking is over, enriches flavors and color.

5. Exercise extreme caution in use of spices and herbs. Seasonings should work as a team to produce a well balanced result without any one flavor dominating. Begin with  $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon or less of any spice you have never tried before. You can always increase the amount if you wish.

6. Two tablespoons of bottled lemon juice may be substituted whenever "the juice of a lemon" is called for in a recipe.

The Art of Exotic Cooking

Stuff Eye of Beef From Spain

Boliche Asado

This delicious roast (stuffed eye of beef round) makes its own exquisite sauce. Barely detectable apple flavor, sparked with lemon juice, is responsible.

- 4 to 5 pound eye of round roast
- 2 Chorizos (Spanish sausage)
- $\frac{1}{2}$  pound slab smoked bacon
- $\frac{1}{4}$  cup stuffed olives
- $\frac{1}{4}$  cup olive oil
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 1 celery rib, chopped
- $\frac{1}{2}$  small green pepper, chopped
- 1 large York apple, chopped
- 1 large ripe tomato, peeled, quartered and seeded
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon crushed oregano
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon pepper
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup good California Burgundy wine
- 3 tablespoons bottled lemon juice
- 12 small new potatoes, peeled
- 8 carrots, scraped and cut in thirds

Have your butcher make a pocket through the center of the roast, lengthwise. Put chorizos, bacon and olives through food chopper and stuff mixture into the pocket, distributing it evenly the length of the roast. Small skewers will close the opening during cooking.

Using a roasting pan with a cover, heat olive oil. Sear roast on all sides, making sure it is brown (about 15 minutes). To the roasting pan, without removing meat, add chopped fruit and vegetables, oregano, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Saute until onion is transparent.

Add wine, and cover. Place in preheated, 300 degree oven and cook for approximately three hours or until roast is fork tender. Uncover at intervals to baste and turn roast. When meat is done, cool completely on cutting board before attempting to carve.

While meat is cooling, strain pan sauce through sieve, forcing as much of the vegetable through as possible. Cool in refrigerator if there is time and peel excess fat from top. Otherwise, skim excess fat from top of sauce. Return sauce to roasting pan, add  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup water, bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer.

Slice the cooled roast into thin slices and replace in sauce in form of whole roast. Surround with new potatoes and carrots, sprinkle with lemon juice, baste well with pan sauce, cover and continue cooking at 325 degrees until potatoes and carrots are done. Serve with moros y cristianos and ripe fried plantains (when available) or bananas.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Moros y Cristianos

(Fried white rice and black beans)

- 1 cup black beans
- 1 whole small onion
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 small ripe tomato, whole
- 1 tablespoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$  cup olive oil
- $\frac{1}{2}$  medium onion, chopped fine
- $\frac{1}{2}$  medium green pepper, chopped fine
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 teaspoon oregano, crushed
- 2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon hot sauce
- $1\frac{1}{2}$  cups long grain rice
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 crushed garlic clove (unpeeled)
- 2 tablespoons dry California sherry

Pick over the beans and discard foreign particles. Wash thoroughly. Cover with water, 2 inches above beans, and soak overnight. Next day, pour beans, water and all, into a soup kettle. Add the whole onion, bay leaf and whole tomato. Add enough water if necessary to cover beans 1 inch above. Bring to a rapid boil, cover; lower heat and cook until beans are soft (do not add salt to beans until beans are cooked).

When beans are cooked, add 1 tablespoon salt and cook 5 minutes longer.

Use only a wooden spoon to stir the beans. Drain the beans and measure the liquid. If liquid does not measure  $2\frac{1}{2}$  cups, add water to obtain correct amount. Reserve the beans and liquid.

Heat the oil in a skillet. Add the chopped onion and green pepper. Saute until onion is limp. Add the garlic and oregano. Cook 10 minutes longer.

Combine lemon juice, salt and hot sauce. Stir into the saute and mix well. Add the rice and fry gently with the saute for about 10 minutes.

Add the beans and the  $2\frac{1}{2}$  cups of liquid. Bring to a boil; stir once, cover and place in oven at 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Remove from oven.

In a skillet, heat the oil with the crushed, unpeeled garlic. When garlic is golden, remove from oil. Add 2 tablespoons of dry sherry to hot oil and immediately dribble over the casserole. Cover and allow to stand  $\frac{1}{2}$  hour before serving.

Politicians' Leisure Tied to Nature

By JEAN F. DOLAN

As the Campaign '68 starts into its final week it is kind of fun to go behind the scenes and take a peek at the candidates' less publicized pursuits. Here in the Mid-Hudson Valley, the Democrat and Republican runners in the Congressional race both reside in pastoral Millbrook and as might be expected their leisure activities in a non-election year are tied to the soil in many respects.

John S. Dyson, Democratic candidate in the 28th District, holds a degree in Agricultural Economics from Cornell University College of Agriculture and is currently conducting experiments with hybrid oats on the 200 acre family farm which he manages.

Hamilton Fish Jr., the GOP choice for the congressional post, too is an avid gardener and when not hitting the campaign trail maintains the home grounds with an assist from wife Julia and the four children. His particular interest is in trees — pruning and transplanting. At one time he had a nursery specializing in rose trees and was reluctant to give it up under the pressures of campaigning.

Valley History

Residing in a valley steeped in history both men have a fine awareness of heritage. Fish majored in American History at Harvard and has maintained a continuing interest through his readings. And well he might as his family has a history of public service spanning 165 years. He is the fifth generation to run for U.S. Congress.

Both Fish and Dyson are members of Historical Societies in counties of the Mid-Hudson area. In addition Dyson is a member of the D & H Canal Historical Society and during the campaign toured Ulster County sections of the canal which are slated for preservation and restoration.

The publisher of an award-winning weekly newspaper in Millbrook, Dyson is the author of Our Historic Hudson a paperback volume billed as "an adventure into America's past...through the beautiful countryside of the Mid-Hudson Valley."

Before the Race

The book, started long before Dyson entered the Congressional race, carries an impassioned plea for preservation of our heritage in the face of bulldozers and corrosive elements of nature. "We can anchor the nation firmly in our past, as reflected in buildings, canals, bridges, headquarters and houses. From appreciation of our history will come a clearer vision of our destiny," the author concludes after detailing the many individual efforts in this direction on both sides of the Hudson.

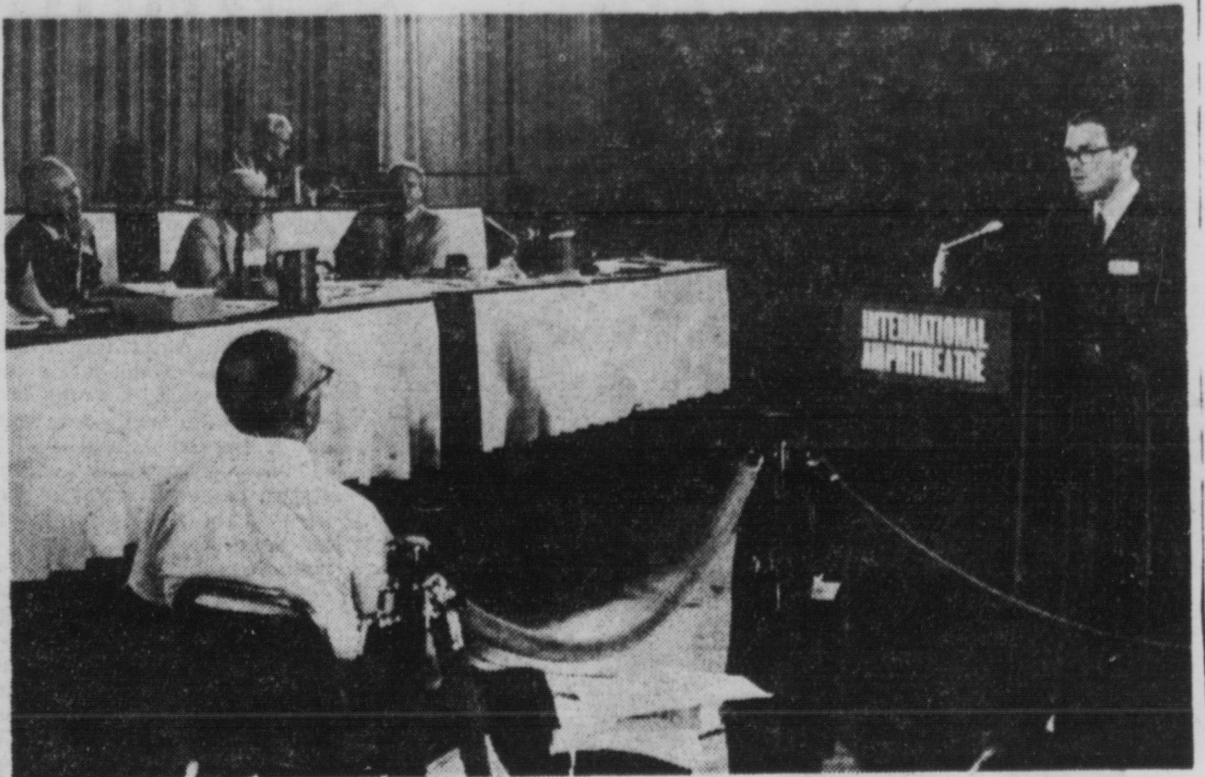

In the forward by Stewart I. Udall, the Secretary of the Interior commends Dyson for the ideas put forth in the book and notes particularly the suggested "heritage tours" of the east and west banks of the mighty river.

Dyson is also a member of the National Historic Trust and the Wilderness Society.

Both candidates are currently caught up in the whirl of campaigning which leaves very little time for hobbies or sports which they enjoy.

'Summer Person'

According to Julia Fish, Ham is very much a "summer person." In addition to his gardening interests he is a dedicated fisherman, and a real tennis buff. In the latter sport his son Hammy, 17, has rather outdistanced Dad.

STATES CASE — John S. Dyson presents his model rural regions program at the Democratic National Convention platform committee meeting in Chicago. The program designed to improve the lot of rural areas and check the migration of youth from the countryside is part of his concern with the good earth

Part of the family summer fun centers around Murray Bay, approximately 100 miles north of Quebec city, Canada, where Ham gets an opportunity to fish for the big ones to his heart's content. The Murray Bay retreat has spelled summer for both Ham and Julia's families for a long long time. Their grandfathers were best of friends. Mrs. Fish hails from the Montreal area.

Another favorite fishing paradise was discovered when Ham Fish served three years as vice consul with the U.S. Foreign Service posted in Dublin, Ireland. The emerald Isle is noted for its salmon and trout fishing and they took advantage of the streams there. Favorite dos in Ireland included hunt meets, races and the Irish countrylife in general.

During the campaign there has been little time for much but meeting the people with only an occasional moment for gardening, a flying trip to Canada and a rare glance at football on television.

In the sports line, Dyson is most interested in skeet shooting, but as an aide noted there is little time for anything but politics at this stage of the game.

For both candidates, politics is a way of life, and all consuming interest which leaves little time for anything else. Dyson's writings stem from his work at the famed Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Prince-

WITH FRIEND — Mrs. Edward R. Murrow, a Dutchess county resident, and Dyson confer on matters both literary and political.

About Tempo's Cover

Parading back and forth in front of the Downtown Freeman building, Connie Pinkosz and her two smartly attired-for-Election Day Whippets, Ch. Gortico Flicker and Gortico Lucky Charm, did what they could to encourage a big voter turnout next Tuesday. The dogs were wearing special coats, the gift of a national dog food company, imprinted with the words: "Vote as you dog-gone please — but please Vote Nov. 5!"

Connie, who's nine and a fourth grader at Kingston's Meagher School, can't wait to turn 10 and compete in Junior Showmanship Dog Shows. Flicker and Charm are owned by her parents, the J. Gordon Pinkosz's, and are two of the 28 Whippets residing with them at their home on Rosendale Road, Kingston.

The Whippet is the only breed to carry the Gortico prefix and three August litters at the Pinkosz kennels have brought a colorful variety of puppies to join Flicker and Charm. Flicker's a champion; has several Best of Breed and a Group Placement to his credit. Charm's been Best of Breed twice, has one Group Placement, and needs only three points for her championship. Seems to TEMPO, she should score a few points for good citizenship in urging voters to get to those Presidential polls.

The Pinkosz dogs have travelled as far as Chicago to compete and both our cover canines can boast a common ancestor, grandfather and great-grandfather of Flicker and Charm respectively, Ch. Courtenay Fleetfoot of Pennyworth, 1964 sweepster of all titles at Westminster.

Going South

Our cover campaigners head next for a show in Gaithersburg, Md. Their owner, who's a member of the American Whippet Club and editor of the Whippet column in Popular Dogs magazine, tells us Whippets are of English origin; have popped up in paintings since the Middle Ages.

Gracefully slim, they stand 19 inches at the shoulder, weigh about 20 pounds, have sleek coats that come in many colors, and are extremely sturdy. Next to pleasing a master, racing is their greatest joy and they are capable of coursing a rabbit and catching him on the run. Many a family Whippet kept an English family in meat by catching rabbits during World War II when blitzed-out of Londoners moved to the country.

Whippet racing's for fun only with no betting involved and they run a straight track of 140 yards. If you'd like to see one, check with the Liberty Hound Racing Club on Long Island which holds meets about once a month, weather permitting.

COUNTRY AND WESTERN singer, BERNADETTE WILLIAMS of Saugerties, is appearing tonight and tomorrow evening at New Jersey's Frontier Room. It's another step up the ladder of success in her chosen field, following appearances with some of the top stars of the Grand Ole Opry, and with such performers as Red Foley, Kenny Roberts, Ernest Tubbs, Elton Britt and Pee Wee King. Now appearing both locally and throughout the northeast, Bernadette has also performed on TV and radio. The local singer lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Williams, of 71 Montgomery Street, Saugerties.

Several nations annually issue postage stamps in tribute to Christmas. The United States in recent years has joined the growing list of such nations and a few weeks ago announced the design and details of its 1968 stamp, as reported in this column.

Now the Australian Philatelic Bureau has made public the design for two Christmas stamps—one for Australia and the other for Norfolk Island.

The Australian five-cent stamp depicts a view of Bethlehem at the time of the nativity as seen from a hilltop. Surrounding the design on three edges are the words "Christmas 1968—O Come All Ye Faithful Joyful and Triumphant."

The Norfolk Island adhesive shows a silver star surrounded by a circle of hibiscus blooms on a blue background. Underneath is a scroll with the words "Peace on Earth." This is also a five-center.

that it has listed new prices for 21,659 items, most of them upward, indicating an expanding market for desirable U.S. material. The 707-page volume sells for $6. In its 1969 Volume II Standard Postage Stamp Catalog, Scott shows 46,386 new prices for postal adhesives of European countries, colonies and independent nations of Africa and Asia. This one sells for $9.50.

Great Britain has issued four pence and five pence regional stamps for Northern Ireland, Scotland, Wales and Monmouthshire, Isle of Man, Guernsey and Jersey. Each stamp will have as its main design the portrait of Queen Elizabeth.

The Republic of Korea has issued a new seven-won stamp honoring that country's first "Korean Trade Fair" which was held at Kurodong, south of Seoul. The design of the stamp features the Main Gate entrance to the Korean fair.

Western Samoa pays tribute to the 21st anniversary of the establishment of the South Pacific Commission by issuing three new stamps. The commission encourages and strengthens international cooperation in promoting economic and social welfare as well as advancement of the nonself-governing territories in the South Pacific region. The area consists of nearly all the Pacific islands, with population of three million.

The three new stamps show panoramic views of the western Samoa coast.

Potpourri

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Guess one might say we went "up the up stairway" Saturday night when we satisfied our appetites in Rainbow Inn's

Penthouse, one flight above Rainbow's Bowery Dugout, our usual port of call. Spotted Mike Mattia and his wife; Mike has the distinction of keeping a large percentage of Kingston's women looking sharp by way of his Artistic Beauty Salon.

Those three lovely Harlow sisters were there, too — with their spouses, naturally — Joe Gallagher, Phil Razez and George Kotrady. Understand they were celebrating the sale of Phil's boat. Seems the family gets together to celebrate all major events, and it's surprising how many major events seem to materialize. Now that Joe is sporting brand new jet-black whiskers we expect they're making plans already for the very night he shaves.

Have always thought Rainbow's waiter Tony looked enough like Bill Cullen to be his stand-in. Now he even jokes like him, 'but when he starts suggesting strawberry shortcake for dessert because we could "use the weight," remembering back 15 years when there was 35 pounds more of us, it's time to cut the comedy.

As for the ever-cordial "host" . . . happiness is a man called Johnny Narlewski. And, to his smiling query, "Is everything O.K.?" one must be honest and give only the highest kudos for those broiled Alaska King crab claws and luscious lobster tails. Ah! You're a good man Johnny Narlewski.

Another special nicety that stands out about Rainbow Inn — whether up or downstairs — is the tremendously good service . . . even on busy Saturday nights. Evidently, Johnny and his waiters who have been with him for such a long time, just have a certain understanding . . . esprit de corps, one might say.

There was such a huge attendance at the fashion show at Williams Lake Hotel recently that we saw the owner's son-in-law, Ted Peck, and his wife eating their drumsticks in the kitchen. And, speaking of Williams Lake, we've never seen Mrs. Williams without a cluster of flowers in her hair . . . so utterly feminine and such a unique trademark; the night of the show she wore a pink bouquet matching her stunning but simple pink dress.

The Mahars—Helen and Joe, that is — played host recently by taking the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Austin V. Carey out for dinner at The Country Tavern, Clinton Corners, known to its brogue-speaking clientele as "the Irishmen's," and operated by Frances and Frank Lowery. Msgr. Carey has just retired and is bon voyaging to Florida. The Mahars have been doing their share of traveling too. They recently returned from a trip to Colorado where they really did it up grand. You can hear all about it from their comrades, Policeman Frank Kenneally and his gem of a wife . . . she's the former Mary Diamond, you know.

ton University. While working on his master's degree, he prepared numerous papers in the field of government from agricultural economy to model cities plans.

His interest in the arts too takes a political turn as he favors cooperation of government in furthering the muse.

Dyson must take "pleasure in public life," as one of his headquarters spokesmen said for during the course of the campaign he has logged in untold miles but most every conveyance imaginable meeting the people. Still he finds time to answer the hundreds of letters he receives even at the end of a 12 to 14 hour campaign day.

Mrs. Fish speaking of her husband's political career said he had been in politics "all of his life and it is his fascination." More than a little of this poltiicing has rubbed off on the children. Hammy is already planning his political future and even 10-year-old Nicholas and nine-year-old Peter are mapping out when and where they will carry on the family tradition and run for Congress.

Alexa, 15, away at boarding school in Baltimore, Md., calls home everyday to make sure she doesn't miss any of the campaign details. She loves the campaign fervor and spent all summer poltiicing with her father. She will be home Sunday to take part in the final phase of Campaign '68 in the 28th.

Tuesday is the day and all the hard work of the campaign season will screech to a halt. For two such dedicated candidates — win or lose — it can not be the "Last Hurrah" however.

TELEVISION

Obviously, TV's claim to fame this past week was its ability to survive. What with the political candidates pre-empting the regularly scheduled shows—for last minute and final efforts—several prime time shows disappeared from the screen-scene for a bit. But in an election year who could have expected anything different? Still, considering the substitutes, we must admit not one of the presidential hopefuls was a real threat to Robert Conrad of Wild Wild West, Eddie Albert of Green Acres, nor Jim Nabors of Gomer Pyle — USMC . . . as a steady diet, that is. Yet, these popular programs were among the many "bought off" to make room for politics. However, once Tuesday, Nov. 5, rolls around, all should be back in routine again.

Final coverage of the XIX Olympiad from Mexico City took place on Sunday. The ceremonies concluded with the athletes parading together as the Olympic flame was extinguished, not to burn again until the summer games in Munich, 1972.

And, many programs "put on a happy (false) face" this week in observance of the Halloween holiday. Lawrence Welk's Music Makers brewed up a special with such apropos ingredients as "This Old House," "Bewitched," Bothered and Bewildered," "Witchcraft," and "Dry Bones." Even the movies got into the spooky act and offered a touch of the spirits, scaring up such oldies as Ghost Chasers, Cry of the Werewolf, Slaughter of the Vampires and Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein. As for NBC's Ghost and Mrs. Muir and Channel 7's Bewitched, you have a ghoulish that simmers every week with a Halloween flavor.

Vassar College Receives Bequest

The late W. K. Rose, professor of English at Vassar College, bequeathed $175,000 to the college for graduate fellowships in the creative arts. The bequest was announced today by president Alan Simpson. Mr. Rose died in Poughkeepsie on October 3rd.

The income from his bequest, to be known as "The W. K. Rose Fellowship Fund," will be awarded to Vassar graduates of demonstrated ability who wish to pursue work in writing, painting, sculpture, or music composition. Mr. Rose, a well-known scholar in the field of twentieth century literature, taught narrative writing at Vassar and was deeply interested in encouraging talented students in the creative arts. His intent in making the bequest was to give young Vassar graduates an opportunity to get on with creative work for a year or more free from financial worries.

Vassar expects to receive the bequest in 1969.

At Lake Mohonk

Dutchess Community College's brass sextet played works from the Renaissance to the 20th century last weekend during a performance for guests at the Lake Mohonk Mountain House, New Paltz.

The musicians, selected from the college's brass choir, were heard in a varied program of works by such composers as Pezel, Bach, and Vincent Youmans. Roger Thorpe, assistant professor of music at Poughkeepsie's DCC, conducted.

Rare Wells Exhibit

Included in the rare book collection at Bard College's Hoffman Memorial Library is an unusually complete set of first editions of the works of H. G. Wells. Presented to the college in 1935 by Theodore Steinway of the piano manufacturing firm, two of whose sons attended Bard, the collection has been arranged for exhibition by Miss Mary Anna Lorang of Red Hook, a student library assistant at the college. The exhibition opened last week and will be on display in the library until Thanksgiving vacation.

Wells, who is best known as one of the earliest writers of science fiction, also wrote a biology text, a number of books for children, including floor books and adventure stories, and tales which he called Grotesque Romances. He sometimes used a pseudonym, and the collection at Bard includes one novel which he autographed, using the pen name, and the authorship of which he did not admit until after a third edition had appeared. There is also an edition of The Time Machine on which his name appears as H. S. Wells.

There has been no published bibliography of his work since 1924, when his grandson prepared one. Miss Lorang says. That one is in the Bard collection and there is enough other material on hand to assist a new bibliographer. The library is open from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday; from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Friday; 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. on Sunday. The public is invited to visit the library and to see the Wells exhibit.

Kerr Updates 'Birds'

Aristophanes' comedy "The Birds," in a modern version by New York drama critic Walter Kerr, will be presented at Bennett College in Millbrook on the evenings of Nov. 7, 8, and 9. Tickets will be required for the performance. They may be had on request by calling the college, 677-3441 ext. 237, on Nov. 4 and 5.

The production, which is directed by Theodore Katzoff of the Bennett drama faculty, will be given in Harkaway Theater with curtain time at 8 each evening. "The Birds" is considered one of Aristophanes' most hilarious comedies, and the production gives audiences an opportunity to see Greek comedy in action, yet in a form relevant to today.

Male characters in the cast will be played by Dr. Harlan Howlett, Pleasant Valley, an actor well known to local audiences; Mark Lonow, a young professional actor from New York City, and Carmine Di Arpino and Charles Hoyt of the Bennett faculty.

Paper Lion

The eight tons that producer Stuart Millar has to move from one location to another for "Paper Lion" was not scenery and props. It was some 62 football players, members of the Detroit Lions and candidates for the team, who starred in the film version of George Plimpton's hilarious best-seller about his brief career as a quarterback (a frightened one). Alan Alda stars as Plimpton in the comedy which opened in Technicolor Friday, at the Community Theatre, through United Artists, an entertainment subsidiary of Transamerica Corporation.

Although the Lions make their training camp north of Detroit, a winter filming schedule ruled Michigan out and filming on the feature began at Saint Andrews' prep school in Boca Raton, Florida. Here most of the on and off the field action of the story was filmed. Additional scenes, including the famous touch football scrimmage, were complete on the "Sheep Meadow" in New York's Central Park. Consistent with Mayor Lindsay's policy of encouraging movie-makers to come to New York, police and special assistants were on hand to facilitate the filming. But even so, curious crowds surrounded the cast and crew who also counted among the on-lookers dozens of dogs, cats, horses, mounted police and squirrels. Not one sheep on the Sheep Meadow, however.

In St. Louis scenes were filmed in Busch Stadium to match earlier footage made during the football season of a game between the Lions and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Because the film is about real people and real events, producer Stuart Millar decided to use real players and in addition to the locker room and gridiron sequences with football stars featured roles were assigned to coach Joe Schmidt, Alex Karras, John Gordy, Mike Lucci, Pat Studstill and Roger Brown—as well as Vince Lombardi and Frank Gifford. In fact, only two members of the cast weighed in under 200 pounds. One was Alan Alda, at 175—and the other was his cinematic girl-friend, Lauren Hutton, who tipped the scales at a mere 118.

"But she looks better on the scales than the players," noted director Alex March . . . and audiences will have to agree.

The Community Theatre has re-opened for full time operation, seven days a week including matinees.

Coogan's Bluff

A thrill-packed manhunt that takes an Arizona lawman, extraordinarily gifted for his duties in the mountains and sand canyons of his native state, to Gotham with its concrete-and-steel canyons—with plenty of romance along the way—is an exciting story premise of Universal's "Coogan's Bluff," now at Mayfair Theatre. Clint Eastwood stars in the color-photo-graphed adventure drama assisted by co-stars Susan Clark, Don Stroud, Tisha Sterling, Betty Field and Lee J. Cobb.

Eastwood, who skyrocketed to stardom with the success of three Italian-made westerns ("A Fistful of Dollars," "A Few Dollars More" and "The Good, The Bad and The Ugly") calls the film an "eastern-western." While he wears riding boots and a ten-gallon hat, there isn't a single horse in the picture, even when he tracks an Indian in reservation country. For that, he uses a jeep. In New York, he rides taxis, except for the final chase when he chases his man in a mad motorcycle race through the grounds of The Cloisters.

Miss Clark, a New York Police Department probation officer who keeps her files in her home, and Miss Sterling, the criminal's girl who decides she likes Eastwood, provide story-connected romance. Miss Clark was last seen in "Madigan" involved in an adulterous love affair with Henry Fonda. Miss Sterling has been on the screen, both in features and television for about five years. She comes by acting naturally since she is the daughter of Ann Sothern and Robert Sterling.

Stroud, the hippie killer Eastwood goes to Manhattan to extradite, has had important roles in "Madigan" and "Games" for Universal to whom he is under contract. Cobb, who has been in motion pictures since 1937, portrayed "The Judge" for more than five years in the long-running TV series, "The Virginian."

Don Siegel, who produced and directed from a screenplay by Herman Miller, Dean Riesner and Howard Rodman based on Miller's story, proves he knows New York City in the varied backgrounds he uses. With executive producer Richard E. Lyons, some of the out of the way sites Siegel selected for "Coogan's Bluff" are the medieval museum in Fort Tryon Park, the Tavern-On-The-Green Restaurant in Central Park, the Heliport atop the new Pan-Am Building and the already mentioned The Cloisters.

This picture has been designated "Suggested for Mature Audiences" by the office of Code Administration of the Motion Picture Association of America. The purpose of the designation is to alert and inform parents so that they may decide for themselves whether the picture will be one which their children should or should not see, or may not understand or enjoy.

Santa Claus

Santa Claus is coming to the Community Theatre today and Sunday at 2 p.m. for a special kiddie matinee.

The jolly spirit of children's desires for Christmas will be on the screen in the Eastman Colorscope motion picture "Santa Claus." This film won the San Francisco Film Festival's Golden Gate award for the best International Family Film.

The picture will be a real treat for children. For adult viewers with or without youngsters it has at least two striking phases.

First: It is an undeniably modern movie.

The influence of science fiction has reached Santa's workshop or home base.

Second: It shows Santa Claus as the messenger of goodwill for children of all nations. Santa Claus' helpers are children from all sections of the world.

When Santa leaves in his reindeer-drawn sleigh on Christmas Eve, he will make poor children happy and mischievous ones good and leave for all a message of faith in God.

IN THIS ERA of minimizing screen violence, a new star has emerged hip-deep in the gore of bad guys mowed down by his trusty six-shooters. The star is Clint Eastwood. The films that put him there are "For A Fistful of Dollars," "A Few Dollars More," and "The Good, The Bad and The Ugly." In these epics Eastwood spilled more blood than Atilia and Jack the Ripper combined.

...And There'll Be More of the Same Tomorrow

EXCHANGING HIS BATON for a glass of bubbly, conductor Claude Monteux of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, thoroughly enjoyed last year's Wine and Cheese Tasting Party to benefit his orchestra. Tomorrow, Nov. 3, there'll be more of the same when the Third Annual Party will be held in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel from 5 to 7 p. m. Those attending — and YOU'RE invited — will sample the finest wines and cheeses on the market; enjoy musical entertainment; and be treated to an exhibit of paintings by such artists as James Kaman, Leslie Sanford, Mary Messina and Dr. Emeline Hayward North, among others.

CHEESE BY THE CARLOAD is provided at the Philharmonic's tasting and nibbling benefit, as illustrated in the scene from last year's gala party at the Governor Clinton. This sample's of the Swiss variety, but other flavorsome types will be offered, too, when the Hudson Valley Orchestra will again be feted this Sunday. Totally successfully on two previous occasions, the Wine and Cheese Tasting fete combines food, music and art for a memorable experience. Among the artists exhibiting this year are: Mollie Rafalowsky, Joan Bisely, Dorothy Aquilina, Mindy Kotler and Richard North. Why not join the fun tomorrow? You can get your tickets at the door.

Going Gourmet

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Some time ago the Wiedemanns, Stewarts and Cox's — Siller's VP, and the YMCA and phone company's VIPs, that is — beat a path to Monticello's Holiday Mountain Restaurant for dinner. But to a previous commitment we had to pass up a chance to go with them, but took a rain check. And on a beautiful sunny September day we used the rain check.

Believe us . . . aloha! . . . and all that sort of thing is yours for the lovely drive to Bernie's Holiday Mountain Restaurant in Rock Hill, just outside Monticello.

As Bernie says, "Each item is an individual creation cooked especially for you by experienced native chefs who, with their original recipes, choice and rare ingredients, have re-created the finest in Cantonese cuisine." And we'd be gilding the lily to try to improve on Bernie's own words about Bernie's own restaurant.

Undoubtedly, the most spectacular dish on the very versatile menu is Bernie's famous "luau." From the South Sea Islands and the mainland of China come an exciting world of authentic foods, BUT a hearty appetite is a MUST. Beginning with Beryl soup—which is a meal in itself—followed by fried rice, egg roll, shrimp in lobster sauce, THEN spare ribs and the main course. Do we detect a look of disbelief? . . . we kid you not. Actually, everything is so-o-o good, it disappears like ice cream in a cone. However, a minimum of two persons is required for the "luau" with a small charge for an extra cover.

Did you know the basic theme in all Chinese cooking is to create harmony and balance in food by taking something from the Kingdom of the seven seas (shrimp with lobster sauce); another from the Good Earth (Chinese vegetables); and one from the Heavens (Moo Goo Gai Pan or pineapple Gai Pan)? . . . just mentioned this little morsel as food for thought.

Tell It Like It Is

Holiday Mountain epitomizes the crossroads of Eastern and Western appetites: Chinese-American-Italian dishes; lobster, fresh Florida red snapper; filet mignon black Angus, veal cutlet parmesan with spaghetti; combination dishes, spareribs, eggs rolls, fried rice; Polynesian chicken stuffed with Virginia ham. If we continue to brag about the selections, we'll be accused of owning stock in the place but, . . . we tell it like it is.

Just a bit about decor: bright green and gold walls and furnishings; hanging chandeliers; and an exceptional selection of paintings contrasting with the subdued, rustic cocktail lounge which boasts congenial Vic at the mixing side of the bar.

Takes less than an hour and a half to get there—New York Quickway, Exit 109—and together with what's left of fall's flaming foliage, it's a Sunday afternoon we recommend . . . loud and clear.

Ferocious Mencken

THE CONSTANT CIRCLE.

By Sara Mayfield. Delacorte. $6.50.

This is an uproarious, shrewd and enlightened chronicle of life as viewed by H. L. Mencken and his circle of friends, written by a junior but cherished member of the circle. The Baltimore literary hatchet man himself would give it thumping approval.

Miss Mayfield by chance brought about the meeting of Mencken and his future wife Sara Haardt, who was Miss Mayfield's English instructor at Goucher.

It took Sara Haardt seven frequently uneasy years to catch the Bad Boy of Baltimore and turn him into one of the most devoted Benedicts of literary history. Actually, as many have suspected and Miss Mayfield knows, he was exceptionally sensitive and affectionate where his friends and family were concerned. In Miss Mayfield's account, the air of tragedy hung over his marriage from the first, since he knew, although his wife did not, that she had only a few years to live.

Nothing Sentimental

But this is no mere sentimentalizing of the career of America's most uncompromising and ferocious literary critic. Miss Mayfield's own critical perception is admirable for pointing up the significance of Mencken's enthusiastic endorsements and denunciations. Many of the foremost writers of his time—Theodore Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Willa Cather, to name just a few—probably would have had far different calreers had not the Maryland Sage been at hand to encourage them when he thought they deserved it and thwack them when he was sure that was warranted.

Miss Mayfield has caught just the right ingredient of Mencken's pungent idiom without losing her own. The result is like adding a fourth if more detached volume to Mencken's own hilarious autobiography.

Arts and Antiques Festival to Open; Will Feature Rare, Original Exhibits

The fourth annual National Arts and Antiques Festival opens at the Seventh Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and 67th Street, from Nov. 9 to the 17th.

The festival brings together an exhibition of original artifacts together with rare antiques and decorative accessories in a concept unusual in antique shows.

Only 150 dealers have been invited to participate in the exhibition of antiques presenting a highly selective display of the elegant decorative arts from successive cultures since the dawn of civilization. In the area of artifacts, there will be an extensive representation of the works of artisans, artists and other traditional craftsmen who have perfected their skills. Together, the festival creates a panorama of man's art expression over 60 centuries.

The festival was conceived as a tribute to the fine works man designed for the adornment of his home and environment by N. H. Mager, the showman who created the colorful New York

Flea Market and prestigious National Antiques Show.

Artifacts, selected as the "antiques of tomorrow," will be presented in eight categories, illustrating traditional cultures and diverse styles transmitted from father to son. Examples of furniture, glass, porcelain and ceramics, primitives, jewelry, paintings, prints, maps and sculptures, toys, tapestry and needlework will be shown. Virtually every item in the vast gallery will be for sale.

Visitors to the festival will enjoy many extraordinary side shows. Among these will be Iriquois Indian False Faces from the Brooklyn Children's Museum, honoring in crafts for more than 400 years Dekanawideh, the Great Peace Bringer; contemporary glass sculptures of Cocteau and Picasso; primitive stone and wood carvings of Samuel Rothbart; lavish Victorian needlework from the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibition; the Air India Collection of folk art featuring the Hindu household deities, and such regional exhibits as colorful polychrome Pennsylvania German chests and Shaker furniture.

The National Arts and Antiques Festival will be open 1-11 daily and from 1-7 on closing day. Purchases may be charged to Diner's Club. Proceeds of the show benefit the educational programs of the Community Committee at the Brooklyn Museum.

'90 Miles' Sets Krasna's Comedy

What happens when a wife catches her husband in the act of being kissed by a lovely young college student—and the predicaments which follow—make up the plot of Norman Krasna's "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?"

With Walter Paradies playing the lead male role of David Williams, the comedy of errors is currently in rehearsal by the Ninety Miles Off Broadway drama group of New Paltz.

The part of Mrs. Williams will be played by Kay Shand and, in all, 17 actors and actresses make up the cast. A large backstage crew is involved in handling the sets, lights, makeup, sound and ticket sales, all under the direction of Al Snider.

The Ninety Miles troupe invites all area residents to what promises to be an enjoyable evening full of laughs and suspense. "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?" will be performed on the evenings of Nov. 8 and 9 at 8:30 p.m. at New Paltz High School, New Paltz.

Tickets will be available at the door or may be reserved by calling 255-1561.
